We've just played one of the worst games of Cosmic Encounters I've ever played! Not that my own playing was bad, for example after an hour of playing there were only 2 boxes in all the systems! It was like the "I Love Lucy" of Cosmic Encounters games. By the Dreadful Dornmann I was glad the game ended.

Steve: Hey how's life going?

Perianne: It's more than a buck

Nancy: Who's Jap? ... I think I've been insulted?

Why do you write your name in that little scribble, it looks like it should be on Superman's uniform.

General Musings:

When I was in 10th grade in high school, my best friends Robin and Fred, along with a senior, Ray Horstberg, formed the Upward High School Sincere Fiction Club. There had been attempts before, but this was the first successful long-lasting sincere-fiction group to make it. ^{However} as the group would later become ^{known} as the "Guns and Blows" mightily in the next three years until we had something like 2 or 3 dozen people. There were problems of course - poor stories and better members, girls that would come to pass but friends, food (meatballs) and fights that were ^{never} had less. But there was a great side too. There was a feeling of camaraderie, of belonging, a feeling of unity we all shared. When Fred was in the hospital, there was always concern that his side when Mike Jones was hurt we came away when I was trying to recover from the accident, angry, embittered, and cynical. ~~But~~ ^{at} ~~the~~ ^{the} ~~time~~ ^{time} ~~when~~ ^{when} I might never do certain things again, someone was always around, kind and forgiving, even in the face of widespread anger, always looked out.

No matter how bad it gets, no matter how wrong we seemed, grew up, grew up together. We couldn't all hold each other - at times I think we all did but it didn't matter it wasn't real hate, not like now. What I've seen here, and away, we were best friends. Together after 7 or 8 years of knowing somebody, well over 3 months don't seem like such a long time. I don't know. Things that were once black and white are now gray, things that were once happy are now capital dead. I tell you though, if I'd have to, as the person I am now, go back in time and live high school again, I don't think I appreciated what we had in 10th grade. I don't even now I can really appreciate it now. Then it was just the six or seven of us - hell, even when we had so many goddamn people in 10th grade that we took over a hallway, it was still just Phred, Phil, Barry, Robert, Howard & Larry. But times change, we change. There have been falling acts. I don't know if you've let Phaedra know he still feels it like that? I've told him. But now, update. For months at a time. This always slipping to you. I'll tell you another. Phaedra and I are closer than ever, but Phaedra - twice now, was worse than ever before, ~~not~~ but there's been no time. There are two major things going on in the present.

AWFUL
C. RESULTS

And yet, over the things, quiet. And a whole tape is being physically. I hear, heard in years, thinking off all about it.
Memories like the Phaedra being good in my mind. Remembering Carmen... and, John... I said, it only is. I have finally become at. I wish you the last piece being finally filled in place and yet I wonder, much of. Too long, chasing - years. To be that, happier than I have ever felt before, yet there is a bittersweet edge to it all. I'm reminded of the man who finally had all he wanted, only to no longer want it. Am I really that pious in the mirror? Is there anything really ever going to enter the town? Is Russell just another battery? I depress.

The past is a closed, time and even high school is gone. But there is still the future, and more important, the present. Perhaps I can never hear the Allman song through the cars of that Justice R. R. But I hear it now, as ever. If we look so hard, we must go forward, we can learn we were, but older, wiser, clearer and well rounded, but still us.

Now I know the most apparent meaningless, purposeless even in the casual reader, but somehow writing this down has helped capitalise something in me has helped me face an inner battle I've been delaying for too long. I'll never do that, after all. It there is a phone call, I must make tomorrow, now I've been putting off for too long.

Let's go off now, before I take over the entire log.

JAM
Earlier in the morn

Where to start? All my past comes back in pieces disjointed and out of time. I cannot remember being a child, being young yes, but never the child of enjoyment.
It was not until much had slipped by that I realized just what I was missing (for some things it is too late to reclaim). Much of my youth, until college, except for crazy (and basically good) homework was spent alone. A few transient friends, but nothing much. In college I joined Starbase; Suffolk a small club dominated and monopolized by its president who did nothing more than talk. The presidency was virtually thrust on me, for I have never enjoyed being in authority.
We wound up with six basic members, a better membership than that previous. Not much but to my liking since it allowed personal contact with all members. Only three of us were college students, but it was fine all things worked out. We were a contented little group, no threats, no power struggle, no threatened violence. We made a short film, took a number of field trips and made good friends.
One friend two years later is now back in touch with me and we're talking occasionally. Loneragon (to whom I owe my thanks for showing me
there is no shame in being a child, and being a child is a part of life that should not be missed). The reason of Klathe held much in the way of redeveloping myself as well. I shall see and hear more yet, and the individual.

intended to complete last week's unsuccessful assassination attempt on the President.

Like John Hinckley — the man charged with last week's assassination attempt — Richardson is said to be infatuated with actress Jodie Foster. And Richardson once lived 20 miles from Hinckley's family in Colorado.

Agents said Richardson had left a letter in a New Haven, Connecticut hotel in which he said Reagan was "targeted for death."

A second letter found yesterday in the hotel room

President in Washington, DC.

The letters were found accidentally by a cleaning woman at the hotel. Asked if there was any connection between Hinckley and Richardson, special agent James D'Amelio said "The investigation is continuing. We can't comment on that."

D'Amelio said there was no indication Richardson had ever attempted to contact Reagan or Foster.

Richardson had checked into the Sheraton Park Plaza Hotel in New Haven on April 4, D'Amelio said, and checked out yesterday morning. Hotel carrying was loaded, according to the federal agents. His home in Drexel Hill is a fashionable suburb of that city.

The letters found in Richardson's hotel room were hand-written and the one threatening Reagan's life contained a photo of the President, according to authorities.

Richardson once lived in Lakewood, Colorado, 20 miles from Evergreen, Colorado, where Hinckley was born.

D'Amelio said the possibility the two have met while living in that state was being investigated.

—NEWS DIGEST

Witnesses in a suburb of San Salvador report the massacre of 23 people. Reportedly, men in uniform and civilian clothes pulled the victims from their homes and shot them in the street. And seven others were reportedly killed inside their homes. But a government spokesman said there was no premeditated massacre, only an exchange of fire in which four enemy soldiers were killed.

that the troops were returning to their home base. The massacres had the West worrying that Soviet forces might intervene in Poland to crush the free union movement.

Earlier yesterday in Prague, Soviet Premier Brezhnev told the Czech Communist Party Congress that he had faith in Poland. And he said that with the help of Polish nation-

Danny: Your entry reminds me of my high school career. Very similar. When I came to college (with most of my friends) I thought it wouldn't change but it has. Since we didn't live together or have classes together we didn't see each other as much as we hoped to. College makes you grow up very fast (usually) and for the first time since ~ 4th grade we were going up alone. We finally got a chance to grow into ourselves instead of a kind of geshkt person. We can't go back. I'm not sure if we want to. But we are all still friends. Some of us better than others. I guess part of growing up means standing on your own ^{feet} that your friends if necessary. It's not always fun and sometimes hurts but it's part of making. Here is there, you're still a freshman.

All: Read Niven's new book Dream Park yesterday. Good book. (includes a new f.k. "I once had a sword" to the tune of "Norwegian Wood") and quite funny in many places. Like Patchwork Girl it is a SF murder mystery. Unlike Patchwork Girl, it is not part of known space. It is also about role-playing. More of a cross between the SC7 and role-playing. Each person adopts a persona. Magic works via Holograms as do ~~man~~ all monsters and many "Non-Player characters". Its quite cute and expensive to set up. The GMs of this particular game involved in the story had $\approx$ 1 million that they ~~could~~ could lose if the adventure was interrupted). The book is well worth reading.

SHUTTLE

Space shuttle Columbia is up. Gorgeous. A white angel riding twin jets of flames. A beautiful sight, and the closest thing to a religious experience I'll ever have. At T+16, it is amazing. The Columbia is up. It is in orbit. The next burn is in 22 minutes. (Steve's Toast is proposed, "To the skies in the future." Amen) Voices from the shuttle. I try T+23. To commemorate this great (seriously) occasion...

Shuttle Flight

A poem by David Weinbaum

We waited in front of a small object
Breath quickened, pulses rising
~~and~~ Countdown in final stages
Only 20 seconds left.
Columbia disappears in a puff of smoke.
But then, like a great bird
Perhaps a Phoenix
Riding to the limit of Twin Engines
To glory.

We are waiting currently. My head is littly giddy from joy. I am like a small child let loose in a candy store.
Again, I would give all I have to be a bird. There is no use continuing the entry. It will be more of the same.

Goodrats to NASA & have long and prosper.

To All: You just missed the most beautiful experience. (Tr 35:18) It is almost organic to watch a launch. I would give all things previous to have been there.

Jeff: I wish you had been here to watch with us. Thank you for awakening me. Sline entered at exactly the same time that the plane rang.

Fred: I wish you, too, could have been here. I hope you felt the same way we all did. I don't think I have any thing else to say to anyone.

My
All - I have returned from a pretty rough weekend. My grandmother died this afternoon. My mother flew down to Florida this morning to bring the body back. Today is my sister's 18th birthday! Actually, we all expected "Mami" to die a long time ago, so it wasn't exactly a shock. I don't want to go home next weekend, though. Mom will be sitting shiva and the house will be besieged by hordes of unwelcome relatives. Unfortunately, Sack-mann isn't open next weekend, & I am almost flat broke. I don't know how I'm going to pay next semester's bill or how I'll be able to afford to go to med school interviews, either. It's been a very trying weekend. At least I got to see the shuttle launch.

Napey - I don't know why you're having such a hard time picking a nickname. It seems to me that you already have one,
"Hawkeye," if you want it. Did you say
"free food"?

Bill - You seem to forget that you do have a nickname.

All - And now as you

installment of Joelyell:

I Don't Wanna D+D Anymore

He said he'd meet me in the bar,
That old spaceport canteen.

"Bring a gun or a blade."

"What's the occasion?"

"It's a new prison raid."

So down I went to the store, Waterloo,

With my blade or marine.

But when I got there they burst out laughing,
"Tonight's just another D+D fighting scene."

"But -

"I don't wanna D+D anymore

And it's Tasaveller tonight

On I'll walk out that door.

I don't wanna D+D anymore;

I don't want to tonight,

You can be pretty sure."

It didn't matter that he felt like a fool

They forgot when I walked out the door.

He said he's sorry, but it just won't cool

And I don't wanna D+D anymore.

It's so confusing killing ones

In the heat of a combat

Just to see if they're real.

It's not exciting

Dragon-slaying;

Tell me how it should feel.

I'll ask you just one question

When your magic spell is through,

"Could it have been just any mage,

Or did it have to be you?"

Now I'll still be saying -

"I don't wanna Dad anymore
And it's Traveller's tonight
Or I'll walk out that door.
No, I don't wanna Dad anymore;
I don't want to tonight,
You can be damned sure!"
It didn't matter that he felt like a fool
'Cause they'll forget when I walk out the door.
He said he's sorry, but it just won't cool
And I don't wanna Dad anymore.

And don't you know it's wrong,
It's wrong, it's wrong...
Like in that song
Being caught in the web like a fly.
I can't be sure we'll ever get out
And I'm not willing to try!
And I'll just tell you -

"I don't wanna Dad anymore.
Giant spiders, I hate,
I can't take any more!
I don't wanna Dad anymore
And it's Traveller's tonight
Or I'll walk out that door!"
It doesn't matter if you feel like a fool
They'll forget when I walk out the door.
You say you're sorry, but it's not very cool
And I don't wanna Dad anymore.

Apologies to Billy Joel and, in return, to Gygax (how is that spelled?) Gygax

TIME TRAVEL?

More Time Time!

4/13/81 Okay, I really don't have anything much to say. I haven't seen the launch or anything. Hey, I was ASLEEP then, you know? I don't get up at 6AM for much.

Page 41 "A laser beam capable of projecting a beam of pure anti-matter," forgive my rambling. By the way, does anybody actually read this shit? I know I personally skip over the silly looking entries like this and this is definitely why I redacted. And silly. Also redundantly so and whatever. But the shit's gone. I wouldn't read an entry with summary things critical art.

HELL... has anybody else down here been down there? it's not nice. Sam. Mary... are you reading this shit? I'll see you tomorrow. I feel like I've been stoned and not fallen over yet. I remember my childhood... I'm kind enough not to tell you about it though. God. You think it's boring? READING this, you should try WRITING this trash. I quit.

WAIT! WHAT'S HAPPENING TO ME? I NO! I'M LOSING MY MEMORY! BUT I've ALREADY CHANGED SOME THING. I THINK. WHAT'S THIS I'M WRITING? WHAT AM I COMING HERE, I WASN'T GOING TO DROP BY THE FIRM TO, LATER. STRANGE, INDEED.

Tune: Luck Be A Lady

I think I need a fuck.
To stick it in and out.
At times I get so horny I know
That there is no doubt.

No one will enter with me
The eating ~~the~~ will be enough
But then I realize if I tried harder
It wouldn't be so tough.

I might achieve my climax
I think that I could cum
And then I wouldn't feel like such a bum

(G'II) Fuck me a lady Tonight
(G'II) Fuck me a lady Tonight
Even if you've never fucked a lady to begin with Fuck with a lady to-night.

How shall I start? Now let's see,
How nice a lay she will be
But if she doesn't want to do it on a first date
I'll wait until number 3.

A lady might n't fuck with strangers
Though might jerk off or give a blow
But hey she learned how not to use her teeth
That's what I'd would like to know.

WARNING: OBSCENE FILM CONTINUED

So let's keep it all impolite
Let me ~~eat~~ out her out tonight Let her tongue wrap around the head of my
of penis
Fuck her off, baby, tonight

2nd Verse
Spread your legs darling tonight
Get your clit into my sight
I'll lick it with a total single-minded tongue licks
I'll fuck you later tonight

Hands on your tits all around Lifting your ass off the ground
Up thrusts to me my downward stroking
in your hot box
Making a wet shipping sound

Bridge
And maybe for a change of tempo
The vaseline is over here We'll grease each other up ~~and~~ and you'll then turn around
And then I'll get you in there

Let it ~~all~~ ~~even~~ true tonight
Hope she will not ~~be~~ want to fight
I may just get the first fuck

After mailing my last letter, I realized a grave error was made. I neglected (to the best of my recollection) to include <sup>an</sup> one piece of lewd or lascivious material.

This is definitely not in proper standing with the image I carefully nurtured during my time at Stay Brook. In an effort to rectify this incalculable damage to my image, I am immediately sending the enclosed story. It is meant, in all seriousness, to be amusing and I hope it does not offend anyone (at least not greatly).

But please make sure Alyssa (Alissa?) knows I sent it. I wouldn't want her to think I've reformed from my ways of sin if she read my last letter. Bye now.

TRIBUTE TO A BOAT OWNER

It seems there were twin brothers by the name of Jones. John was married and Joe was single. Joe was the proud owner of a dilapidated rowboat.

It so happened that John's wife died the same day Joe's boat filled with water and sank. A few days later, a kindly old lady met Joe on the street and mistaking him for John, she said, "Oh, Mr. Jones, I am sorry to hear of your great loss. You must feel terrible."

Joe spoke up saying, "Well, I'm not a bit sorry. She was a rather old thing from the start. Her bottom was all chewed up and she smelled like an old dead fish. And even the first time I got into her, she made water faster than anything I ever saw. She had a bad crack and a pretty bad hole in front, and the hole began getting bigger every time I used her. I got so I could handle her all right, but when anyone else used her, she leaked like anything. But what finished her was four guys from the other part of town who came looking for a good time, and asked if I would loan her to them. Well, I warned them that she wasn't so hot, but they said they would take a crack at her anyway. The result was the crazy fools tried to get into her all at once. It was too much for her, and she split right up the middle."

Before he could finish the old lady fainted.

WHERE'S DREAM PARK?

4/14
3 AM

At 1:37 today the culmination of six years of work 9 years of planning and billions of dollars of funds took place. Landing in quietly with the only noise coming from the observational jets which zoomed around her and the helicopters which whirled across the field the Columbia returned to earth. Nicknamed by some the falling brick, the Columbia proved them wrong by sailing down gently before ~~stopping~~ <sup>rolling</sup> a mile to stop a foot and a half from the expected landing position. Despite her size, she diverted the observational jets which were about 1/5th her size, the Columbia landed with grace and speed. She was beautiful to say the least. Once she had stopped crews went in to check for dangerous ~~and~~ residues which could be potentially dangerous. Inside the shuttle, Crippen and Young could be heard enthusiastically praising the Columbia. Then as 45 minutes passed they seemed to become rather impatient to get out. Finally about 45 hours later Young emerged and walked swiftly down the landing ramp. He pointed at the shuttle and shock loads with those around him they began to examine its surface. Few tiles were missing and Yering made a tour of the under belly of the Columbia, smiling and showing what can be called unbridled enthusiasm. Then he returned to the shuttle once more, and yet again before he emerged followed by Robert Crippen also smiling broadly. They were soon ferried away in a small van for a complete medical check up. The van left the shuttle skidding a slip of the decks, those of space and of Earth, thus closing the chapter of ocean landings. For the crew at any rate, for the fuel casks were taken from the Pacific and brought to a naval yard where they still remain being examined for damage. All in all one might say this has been a very successful mission which all can be proud of. It marks a change in the way space missions will be carried out and opens the door for the first feasible space station construction. It is a proud day indeed.

Just came from SBS. Yesterday,
I put up 7 posters there - 1 on each floor. Today there were two - one on the third floor (which had been moved - so I moved it back) and one on the 6th floor (where I left it).
All those posters were securely taped
up. ~~Someone~~ removed them deliberately.
If I find out who they'll never hear the end of it.

Dana

P.S. Folks, if you ~~take~~ something borrow any of my stuff that's on the personal effects shelf please replace it.
last on My Arden booklet and map were looked at last night by Bap, that I know of. ~~Oh~~ If I come down here again and find my stuff ~~anywhere~~
but the personal effects table, (left) it goes back to my room.

I would. No comments from the

Fred - I was going to suggest that you have those mattresses removed. I'm glad you finally got around to it.

Marc - I'm sure we'll all miss you (well, most of us... would you believe Danna?). I wish you lots of luck. Come by to visit when you're on leave.

Charlie (again) - I have never played Risk, but I've wanted to try for three years now. As long as I don't have too much work to do, count me in.

Lisa: Fred you Betrayed A TRUST AND SINGLE-HANDEDLY RUINED 2 MONTHS OF COUNSELING. ARN'T YOU PROUD OF YOURSELF?

4/17 Margaret All - I got a phone call this morning at 5:30 am. This call was to tell me that Fred had ~~virtually~~ VIRTUALLY assaulted Lisa in bed. This had undone a lot of Rape Counseling and put Lisa into a near-hysterical state. I came over, and Lisa told Fred her feelings in the matter. Fred has resigned as Head Librarian, and has turned in his key. It is to be noted that Bap is now head Librarian, unless someone objects. Congratulations and Condolences, Bap, it's not an easy job but you're well qualified for it. You will excuse my terse prose, but I'm very upset at the moment. By the way, Fred has accused Lisa of taking all his friends away from him & wrecking his life. I disagree. I hope most of you disagree as well. Anyway, I'm leaving for home now. Happy ~~Path~~ <sup>Path</sup> all.

4/17-81 ALL: Margaret's last entry is <sup>M/4</sup> rather disgusting. I would advise listening to both sides of the situation before commenting. (Dana - are you listening to this?)
Marc

UPDATE All: IT SEEMS THAT LISA DOES NOT CARE TO DISCUSS THE AFORE MENTIONED INCIDENT. PLEASE KEEP ALL QUESTIONS AND COMMENTS TO YOURSELVES.

4/17 All - In regards to Margaret's entry: this is from Lisa:
The situation that occurred was not assault but abuse in terms of lack of physical caring on Fred's part. The counseling was not ruined, it simply caused a setback.

Fred Final Entry

- 1) I am not going to discuss the situation in public. To do so will (in my opinion) do more harm than good. ~~I will not be~~ ~~justified~~ Good will not be served by dragging someone else into the ~~time~~ ~~to~~ get me out, whether or not the truth would be better served.
- 2) Margaret's entry shows me many things about Margaret. Make up your own mind. She did not call to me of the situation, and even told Lisa's side inaccurately. I have not accused Lisa of driving my friends away, nor do I believe she <sup>would</sup> deliberately ~~do so~~ (I do not know the effect yet). ~~But~~ If she wants to drive away people, please let her drive away Margaret. I wish to have no future dealings with this woman.
- 3) I am vulnerable with my friends. Due to the fact that the information given by Lisa & vastly mutilated by Margaret is now forum knowledge, I find all my instincts telling me to never enter this place again. I know (at this point) that Meryl would not backstab me. If she wished to, she had a beautiful time to do it today. She didn't. I would have thought the same of Margaret & she did. My knowledge of my "friends" also tells me to get to the hell out of here. I have never and do not plan on raping people. Rape is one of the worst crimes I can imagine. Since it is probably thoughts about, if not believed, by most forum members, I cannot come down here any more. I am sad about losing my friends in this fashion. (I don't feel that in long term I lost anything with Margaret; her true feelings are shining bright towards me)

4) I'm sorry, but I have to say

Good bye,

5AM

Fred + Lisa: I have always considered myself open minded and find it most difficult to condemn another person. Fred, you and I have had our differences, but they were at most minor. I find myself unable to make a decision until I have heard the facts from both sides, themselves... Not from second hand information which suffers from interpretation.

3/20/81

Dana

Fred: When I read Margaret's entry I found it too incredible to be true and thought that perhaps it was some kind of joke on her part. Eventually I decided something had happened, but I didn't know what and still don't. Never ~~had~~ did I nor would I ~~as~~ believe that you raped anyone despite ~~to~~ what Margaret's entry ~~to~~ seems to say. ~~I~~ At this point, I still do not have any ~~a~~ information from you or Lisa as to just what happened. I hope you don't think that I would 'backstab' you. I consider you to be my friend and trust you implicitly. I would hope the feeling is mutual.

While guys, it's finally happened. Two years have passed, like two centuries of total abstinence. I have finally given in to that craving, that passion which haunts at one time or another each and every one of us. It happened on Thursday. I had for so long resisted, but Andy was persistent so persistent that I simply had to write of this incredible experience. I gave in. I submitted to his will. There, in the darkness and the silence, I lowered the last of my pretenses and defenses for what was I saving myself? Nothing. When it was over that I was truly glad for the experience, but I was equally glad for the fact that Andy was the one with whom I shared it. Ah, the turmoil and the tears. But what an incredible experience. I'd do it again in a minute if I could, but never, never, never will I ever get the first time I saw Star Wars.
- Jake

P.S.

So the shuttle was scrubbed for forty-eight hours last week eh? I'm potter foot-up eh? Well, I've heard of Gremlins but this is ridiculous. It was definitely Chesic Unicorns in the computer. I can just see a dozen or so humiliated technicians rushing up just in time to see the lot of those famous smiles vanishing into the mystic. That is over now.

All - What is wrong with you people?
 I'm gone three days and everything falls apart! I now realize that my initial estimate of the mean maturity level of you people was far too high.
 Freed (if you ever read this) - Once again
 you are overreacting. Except for Lisa, who is too emotionally involved and still too upset, and Margaret, from whom you should have expected this, no one has accused you of rape (in fact, I'm not sure Lisa + Margaret did, either).
 You expect us not to judge you without at least hearing your side,
 but you do not give us a chance.
 It is you who has such a low opinion of us that you refuse to believe that we are capable of being objective.
 The fact that we "thought about" ~~it~~ something is unimportant. Believe it or not, it is possible to think about something without taking it seriously.

Exhibitions. You've been absent for a long time. For of time, I've been busy.
Such is life. I have decided to make two major announcements and explain them. If you know who I am, great — you may find this interesting. If not forget it.

For years I've had the fantasy of engaging in a ménage à trois. It was only when I first met a delicious Turkish boy (whom I've been seeing regularly for around 2 months now)
that the wheels of my mind started plotting to fulfill this fantasy. Then when I met his best friend, also an incredibly sexy Turk — I knew —

Yes so with a little finagling and a little propositioning I finally got my threesome with the two of the most arousing, attractive, scrumptious, and serious men I've ever known. I am satisfied I am content. It was better than a dream come true.

This is announcement #1.

Now for announcement #2.

I am not returning to Stenhouse next year. In fact I am moving to London. I will be spending the summer in Colorado earning $7 an hour full time. This will pay for transportation to London in the fall.

In London I will be studying to be a Christian Science nurse. Yes - all those ~~or~~ rumors you've heard of me being a suspect, innocent, and your girl are true. A Christian Science nurse is one who has been figured in thought and action to help Christian Scientists who are unable to care for themselves while working out a physical problem. ~~For~~ though Christian Science. For further details - contact me personally. C.S. graduate nurses may also be trained to deliver babies and this is the area I most wish to concentrate in.

Now - these announcements conflict with each other. What, may you ask - is a wholesome girl doing picking gorgeous Turkish men at the same time? Needless to say I have much control over my actions and thoughts. I do nothing which I don't want to do. I also don't like missing out on some things. In only a few months time I will be in a situation where I will no longer have the opportunity to engage in such recreation freely. I will also have my thoughts in such a state that I will have no desire to. Now I have the opportunity and now I have the desire I am taking advantage. Also - I have learned from experience that when I fantasize about something - it becomes an obsession until I get it. Once I fulfill the fantasy, it is out of my system and I'm happy. I don't make habits of such ~~injuries~~.

ALL: DO NOT DISTURB ME!

I am not fucking up anybody's brain. I know what I want and I'm getting it and enjoying it. I have a good relationship with each one, and as is most important, we have an open honest communication so that there are no misunderstandings. And I don't go to bed mad just anybody and everybody. I am specific. I even have a close ~~to~~ friend ~~to~~ whom I sleep with regularly, yet we still have not had sex - by choice.

I am not ashamed of my actions and don't expect anyone else
to cut me down for them.

So this is somewhat of an explanation for any confusion anyone may have had concerning whatever rumors have been passed around.

NOW - CONCERNING FORUMITES:

Danny: This is rather late to be mentioning
this but concerning your high school entry-store power to you. I sit with you all the way - which we have discussed before. I'm glad you're finally coming to terms with it.
Jeff - Of course I'm still your friend. It's nobody's damn business what goes on between you and Lisa except the two of you and possibly Jeff. Stop feeling sorry for yourself. Everyone makes mistakes, but it's only the people who have the strength to stand up to their problems and face them without running away from them that get angrier in this world.

(P) Concerning my beloved roomie's entry - Shame on you all. Don't you people understand anything? When Margaret kills a cat she bangs it against a wall leaving the blood and gore on the strip for all to see. Same with chickens. She twists their head off.
Margaret is the way she is. She should not be blamed for ~~me~~ misrepresentation simply because as Pervanne says "You should expect that from her." (Not exactly quoted) Margaret speaks in extremes. It's the way she is. Margaret speaks for effect.
It's the way she is. I love you Margaret.
Please - let's marry soon.

(S) (G) Does anyone know of a female who is interested in having a threesome with myself and another person (male or female)?

Please please help.

Also hope you're feeling better. Keep your thoughts up.

I wish you all much love and good luck -

Peace etcetera

Sam X

7<sup>45</sup>PM To Last Night's Catalogers - I don't mean to criticize anyone who is willing to do some work around here, but it would be nice if you left this place in some semblance of order. What are all those index cards on the shiftie desk for? Are the books on the desk cataloged? Does anyone know what's going on? I came down here to catalog books, but I couldn't tell what had and hadn't been done!!
When you finish next time, leave things
so that the next person can figure them out!!

Sarah - Much luck to you.

Steve - Are you doing this just to annoy us or what? Perhaps if you told us who you feel has wronged you, some real progress might be made. 'Cryptic log entries are obviously not reaching their intended targets, subtlety is beyond the comprehension of the average Forum
member; try bluntness!

Robert - Hi. It's nice to see a semi-intelligent face at meetings once in a while. Why don't you join us more often. (By the way, how is Howard?)

Fred - I don't really see the point in quitting the Forum. It seems to me that the situation has improved tremendously.
Your continued absence serves no useful purpose (except to isolate yourself from those who care about you).

Glenn - When's the last time you saw Ellen?

Ray - What kind of acting situation are you in?

4-21-01 DANA: [redacted] You are not very intelligent person. I try to avoid conversations with you when ever possible. Do not misunderstand I do not dislike you, in fact you are a colorful forumite.

Sarah: Greetings & May much nachos come your way.

Fred: You accomplish nothing constructive by quitting.

Dana

Steve Perri: The names follow:
Fred, George, Jeff, Bop, Tom, Danny; of these, Bop gave an acceptable apology. You can now put yourself on the list for the entry on the page before.

Fred To all: I'm not a member due to the lack of comfort I feel there. When I can handle the flack I get in the forum, I will return. I'm not Steve Kinsley (even though our handwriting looks the same)

Fred - Since you already know where I stand, I see no point in repeating myself. However, as a somewhat more disinterested party than yourself, I wish to take issue with the statement that you "are not Steve Kingsley". On the surface, you are correct, but your actions bear a striking resemblance to his juvenile antics. Think about it.

Steve - I am not about to apologize for what I wrote. I was right! If you wish to "punish" us by refusing to return to the Forum, that's fine with me. Your childishness in this regard convinces me that we are not missing too much.

Dagmar - Does your offer only apply to individuals or can groups qualify as well? What will you do in case of a tie? You ought to spell out the rules more clearly if you don't want to be caught with a $100 dinner bill!

Kurt - Never!

- Penianne

Fred - I am most sorry to hear that you have been driven from the forum by a gross misunderstanding of a matter which should have remained private. I will miss you.

Margaret - I don't know what to say so I won't. I don't know what the situation is and that is really as it should be since it is none of my business. I am upset that Fred felt he had to resign whatever the reason. But I have no desire to ~~be~~ involved in any hate-war which may or may not be going on. Nor do I wish to upset anyone by sounding off on something which I know nothing about.

I like you, I like Lisa and I like Fred. I like everyone in the forum and I believe they feel the same way about me. I would like to keep it that way.

Lisa - good luck, Godspeed, I hope you work out your problems. If there is any way I can help, please let me know.

4-22-81 THE FORUM IS BECOMING A TURBULENT SEA OF EMOTION, I WONDER WHY?

4-22-81 Attention All of Forum (Esp. Fred)

What was said to me (Robin) at last Monday's meeting (4-20-81) was unexcusable. I don't mind being insulted or verbally cut but when I am ever helping somebody in a medical nature I do not want to be bothered by anybody unless they are going to help. I am writing this as a warning to the certain party who verbally attacked me while I was trying to help Lisa with her eye problem. If ever a similar situation comes up there will be hell to pay.

JAM is one year old today, one year ago my first entry as JAM was made. Hard to believe one year has passed since then.

Fred :

Robin: Am I the person who verbally attacked you? I do not recall any such incidents. You can either leave a message in this book, which I will read eventually, or call

What the hell is that?

6:33 PM

Sarah

I'm referring to the previous scribble,
not my name

I'm in the middle of writing
another dirty song.

The first one is a takeoff of a previous song a friend + I wrote Here's the lyrics - I'll be delighted to sing it for anyone who's interested.

Song #1

The sunlights dancing on the windchime

The table's set for tea for two Her sweet prince claiming is her Teddy bear, missing one ear.

He saved her once from the old witch
witch

Who now sits quietly on the shelf
Her daughter's name is little Annabelle
Sleeping in the crib

Annabelle wears pretty lace
all dressed up in blue Annabelle must take her nap
so she can join her mommy and her daddy -

When they drink their tea they talk of dragons slain
They talk of fairies and kings
Our little princess is lying - and little teddy's tired too - It's time to go to sleep and dream

Song #2 (same tune, slightly modified)
(also - Set about 30 years later)

The candlelight is dancing round the room
The tables set for drinks for three
Her sweet Prince Charming is her ~~grocery~~ grocery boy - and the man next door

They go to bed and have a ménage à trois
The whips and chains are by the bed
Her daughter's name is little Annabelle -
Dressed up to the hilt

Annabelle wears frilly lace and matching garters too - Annabelle must take her nap because she works at night.....

Annabelle's mom has taught her all she knows -
How to please jannies and straights -
Our little protégé is learning well -
But little Daddy's getting tired -
Because she practices on him

P.S. I don't like rhyming songs so don't comment on such things.

I have had an offer from my two Beloved Turks to have a repeat performance, what a turn on. What an absolute turn on.

I have had 3 offers so far @ for my female Threesome and I'm still taking suggestions -

By the way - what's the Steve Kingsley story? Seems like an awful lot of juvenile things going on around here. Sure wish people would grow up.

Again - love & good sex -

P.S. By the way - Sarah those songs are written to a tune of a Burt Bacharach style - pure schmaltz.

Sarah - I agree with your last
to lines before the P.S.
K2O3

4/12/81 #4 - Seeing the warning above my writing, I shipped everything over it to its anything like the one written to Charlie, you Penny should be very glad we must let roommates meet year or round to in a heap, a trouble, bye.

Maria - are you Southpaw right? both the handwriting style &
re-but two are pure.

Mary Jo - 9:00? why is everybody picking on sweet little ol' me?

Sarah & Rusty - you're not talking about me, are you? Oh god,
I'm so paranoid!

4/24/81 Hello, little to sup.
Sline

P.S. Sarah & mention not such things.

Greg

Another of my now infrequent entries

Robin - I enjoy reading your entries and your appearance at meetings, perhaps I can persuade you to make both occurrences more frequent.

Perri - You cast doubts on the membership's intelligence and in so doing cast Robin a left handed compliment. Actually I tend to regard the intelligence of the forum, as a whole, higher than average, it is the average level of maturity of the members of the forum that I doubt.

All - The talk is enjoyable I await publication of it. I have accepted a job offer from Sperry, next year, at least, I should be in the area on two heads.

Sarah - I enjoyed your entries a great deal, it is always good to hear of one having a fine time. (sex is such fun). I'm enjoying your doings as well.

Slime - why shouldn't she mention such things

All - I refuse to remark on any of the recent logbook ~~articles~~ entries. I suggest this as the most conservative attitude I have found to take does anyone agree?

see you later

Greg

4/24/81

Fred: I am talking about the time you made a very nasty remark while I was attempting to talk to Lisa out of hurting her eyes more by blinking what might have been an embedded object in her eye. If you have any questions contact me or talk to Alyssa. She was very aware of what was said even if you ~~are~~ are not.

Robin

Greg: I thank you for the really nice compliment.

Robin

4/24/ Fred: In re regard to the fact that you don't say you do not feel comfortable in the forum. Have you ever thought it might be your ~~own~~ ability to always step on someone's toes is a verbal ~~way~~ way. ~~Robin~~

PS. If you have any questions just mentally go over what you say to people when you are in the forum.

Jeff and Lisa: Apologies forthcoming. I know the feeling better than most of the forum. I should have realized.

Sarah: Please teach me the tune. Also thank you! It helped melt/melt Margaret: Hello. How are you.

Fred: All: Since I have not been able to see this across, I'm giving it another try. I'm not quitting the forum permanently. My presence or absence depends on my moods. I'm trying to avoid hassling the forum when I'm ~~not~~ short of patience. This is happening often now
a days. Some may be due to the SFF,
but a lot is due to external events.
I do not consider this a punishment of the forum (like SK) nor do I want or expect any thing from the forum before my presence will increase. I feel that there are major differences in my ~~stand~~ stand than the other person mentioned as being like myself. I hope that this is the last time I have to do this. Enough space has been wasted by a study (by myself) of all the various ways of saying the same thing.

Robin: I will talk to Alysa. I searched my memory and still see nothing I did wrong. However, until I talk to Alysa, I will not say I did nothing wrong, or apologize.

WARNING: THIS IS A FILKSONG ENTRY

(TUNE: WRECK OF THE EDWARD FITZGERALD)

The legend lives on From the Frashen on down
At the ~~long~~ Story Break Center of SUNY
The Forum, so it's told, turns your brain into mold
When the door ~~and the~~ <sup>is</sup> open.

With a load of SF that ~~can~~ cause brain damage
On the bookshelves and out on the table
And off near the shelves where our ~~disturbing~~ <sup>juells</sup>

Is the shifty who's brain is disabled
The students go in but they never come out
For it seems science fiction's addictive
They end up at cons and they spend lots of cash
On sci-fi soft sculpture ~~and~~ green hermanoids.
Or at Interbe where they play C&S and occasionally Nuclear War.

The Filkins fly high and the pros they fly low
As chicks are made out to old Rosie.

The legend lives on From the Frashen on down
At the story Break Center of SUNY

The students they say never leave with their brains
When the Forum is all full of loonies.

Mace - I'm sorry your life is troubled. However, I would appreciate it if in the future you did not vent your frustrations on forum members. Go pick on the mummies!

All - This room will be clean by tonight! I will drop in unannounced ~~at~~ sometime this afternoon (when I'm not writing my 8-15 page evolution paper) to make sure something is getting done. ~~The Excalibur~~ Excalibur was a fairly good flick. & Some glitches
I noticed. 1) All the Knights wore their armour at all times, including the feast
table. 2) Full Plate Armour in Arthur's time! ~~Long~~ That didn't come about 'till the late 14th century - early 15th century.
3) At the end, when Excalibur is thrown by Sir Percival to the ~~lake~~
Lady of the Lake, she only 'saluted' ~~an~~ once & ant withdrew it beneath the surface.
According to legend, it is supposed to be caught, presented, and whirled
three times, presented, and then withdrawn.
This is very important, symbolizing
the Trinity, and was left out.

3:36 PM

Yay it was fun SKO!

Myself, Jeff, Jim, Tom, George, Fred and even Bp. All with Sarah! We were just flying. Up, down, left, right. Even in Seth's P-10. But then, a danger on our way of pleasure. Public Safety arrived. Four of them. Sarah smiled widely. She went to work and within 1/2 hours
she had received not one not two, but 3
It should be obvious. She got them for Failure to produce ~~their~~ her license, reg.,

and insurance. How to best put it? Ah yes!
In a folk song?

(Two streets of Laredo)

As I drove around with my friends to South P. Lot,
Security cars came a-driving towards me.
With four nasty cops, who would give me
a summons
I knew that this night out would not be for free

I ~~took~~ took out my wallet and handed it over.

They looked and I could hear George's teeth rust.
They checked my I.D. and they looked at my license.
They gave back the wallet. But minus the cash.

The moon was so golden as I watched it fade.

They kept in three bars, (Great Ghs were here we bored)

So we all just sat, while they pronounced our sentence.

I felt like run, there's whole mongol band.

So now I'm on notice at good old den,
SUNY be here till fall

I'm on the den's list, and I'll ~~be here till fall~~
And so for poor Sarah, she's out at security
She's with all the guards and she's having a ball.

Take that last line as you may.

yo- see I kept standing there wondering if this gorgeous security guard was going to rape me - I* ever invited him to my room (so that I could show him my licence) and I told him I thought he was cute but I guess he just ~~was~~ thought I was trying to bribe him. So anyway Fred suggested a gang bang because ~~there will~~ ~~men~~ there but the security guys didn't seem to be into it, they had probably just been jerking each other off. That would explain why they were so cold to us - for interrupting them and why they didn't respond to my voluptuous advances (ha ha cough sputter choke)

Wow it was such fun
By the way:

We were there because they wanted to put Samson (my blue bag) onto the back of Tom's truck and make it look like they were doing something nasty. We were actually trying to be quiet and not disturb the Rollquad residents so we went to Smith P.

Fuck Security.

XO

Fred: The only thing I noticed is that security has gotten a cloaking device for their truck. I watched the car drive up & then noticed the truck got there. As Sarah & I joined in melody, the truck again disappeared. When it returned, the ~~device~~ was off and I saw the truck move. Everyone, don't look for the security cars, just check scanners every now and then.

Jeff has fun driving VWs. He thinks  $R = N$  and  $I = 3$ .

I guess it's time for us to comment on the events
of Monday night Tuesday Morning:

It was late and we had returned from Friendly's
We began talking about what we did and so on.

Then it suddenly occurred to one of us (I'm not sure can remember who) to pick up Sarah's VW for the hell
of it and make it around.

I do remember being most egging on and urging the others to do so. I really urged!

We wound up in the parking lot playing hop with Sarah's
VW. We ~~weren't~~ weren't very successful in lifting

it, which probably only ~~my~~ flamed our youthful vigor yet further. Sarah arrived and took it out of gear, we began gushing it about the parking lot.

They Tom got the idea to make the ~~us~~ VW + Tom's trick note (to be careful)

Margi: Sure.

Bopt: I think you had nothing to worry as far as those goes.

To all:

re: address file

I'm going to make an address book/member listing that includes the info on the cards. However, there is more info that people would like to know. What questions would you like all forum members to answer? The next step will be to make a questionnaire, and give it to all the forum members. Obvious questions are: Name? Can you address? Home address? Phone numbers? When joined forum? High School? Major (Minors)? SFF officers held?

bought a potent number: 203,609 Herring Weibler mouse trap, and placed it under the sink with a small jelly bean which voice are supposed to like more than cheese and bait. That night the mouse reappeared, and with it the strange noise, it sounded high pitched and it said: M-I-C-K-E-YAAAAH!
it call silent with the snap of the trap, and realizing my mistake
I nervously opened the door under the sink to look.

A Poem:

Life goes on...
quite!

Days go by...
quite!

We live our lives

We die our deaths.

Life goes on

It just goes on...

(You can tell I'm slightly depressed.)

Sunrises, Sunsets

I watch them all.

I once asked why the sun rose,

Now I know that why cannot be answered.

I am a man.

you are not a man you are a Free Ferret

I do not ask such foolish questions now.

KL/30

I know that such questions cannot be answered.

So I do not ask them, usually.

But every once in a while I do...

Life has no answer within itself.

If an answer must come, it must come from outside.

I am within life.

So I will never know why,

until I die.

And perhaps not even then...

The Ferret wants to need listening for a silence
That never exists

To listen, one must be silent

Everyone is a person. Respect them for that. Everyone is just like yourself, and yet totally unlike.

Love is the answer...

Love thy neighbor as thy love thyself.

Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

→ These 7 words will solve all the world's problems when everyone understands the concept behind them.

You must know yourself first before you can know others. Antony?

understand others.

All: Reading some of these entries over the past few nature of some of the entries. The most disturbing thing I have found is the hypocritical and downright

I can only say that I feel very deep disappointment.
Perhaps there is some madness rampant in the forums,
but and I mean BUT! It is what makes each

George-Danney said to tell you how much he missed you if he doesn't make tonight's meeting. I asked him how much he missed you, but he just said to tell you what he told me. Perhaps you know what all this means; I certainly don't!

Dana-Oceanside is a big place. There is absolutely no reason whatsoever for the graduating seniors to know Nancy. I know very few people from Bethpage who graduated two years before me, and there were less than 2000 students in my high school.

Steve - No one ever said it was easy, but neither is dying of lung cancer. By the way, I never asked you how it felt to be 23. I asked Fred because it was his birthday.

Margaret - How much do we need to allocate to Waterloo for books? Have you applied the proper receipt to Alysa + Lisa? When did you want the history questions?

Line Patrick - Why are there ants all over the log book?

All - I recommend Dream Park highly. It's the first Niven book I've enjoyed (probably due to Steven Barnes' influence). They've really captured the essence of role playing. The only thing that bothers me is that so little is left to the imagination that something (creativity?) is lost in the transition from RPG's to Dream Park games. Nevertheless, it is well written and easy to read (and fun). If Fred ever returns if you should read the book. (Yes, Fred, that was a cheap shot.)

Kurt

I'm shifting for my last time!!
Fred. Hi there sailor.

Nancy (and all else who care) Nobody commented on Gregg's remark on the high IQ of this membership but ~~you~~ you commented when I stated the opposite. I was just wondering if that had anything to do with it. Anyway... Let me clarify my viewpoint on IQ.

I don't think that the standard IQ test means anything. When I talk about IQ I mean actual intelligence. Of course this is very subjective. If a person can convey intelligent thoughts to me by verbal methods, writing, or pictures I will probably consider them to be intelligent. There is a vast difference between him and just thinking someone is stupid. If a person hurls another he might kill him. If a person thinks another is stupid he may laugh at him. Painful but not fatal and leaves the victim with another chance. My own justification for naming the names I did are as follows. Dean has very rarely said or done anything which I consider intelligent (I'm not alone in ~~the~~ this and following opinions, by the way). He has often done and said things which I think ~~are~~ are extremely stupid. ~~But~~ I can't recall Bob ~~was~~ ever ~~saying~~ saying anything intelligent but rarely says things lacking intelligence. On the other hand Greg and Fred have often said and done things which show remarkable intelligence. I repeat and advise people like them. Of course there are many others in both categories.

What is your opinion of Gregg's and ~~my~~ my opinion of the maturity level of the membership? (see 4/23/81)

Fred: Since I can't recall having any significant conversation with you I can't make a very good judgment. However from your entries you seem to be an intelligent person. ~~Am~~ Am I correct in deducing that you are 16 yrs. old? The fact that you fit in so well here might say something of the people involved but I won't draw the conclusions.

Congratulations on your Graduation Greg!!

what's gonna?!

Kurt: I would really suggest that you revise your opinions.
They are wrong.

The Secret

Ferret: Which opinions and how are they wrong and by what standards?

On a somewhat different topic: It's amazing how many problems this club has in dealing with its membership. A passerby could easily get the impression that half of you dislike the other half.

club should be called the Fictional Experts Forum. I can see his point. At every meeting this semester when a topic was brought up, everyone (or at least most of the people attending) had to state his opinion as if it were the only possible and of course best solution. These people do admit when they are wrong one minute, but the attitude when by the speaker is that I am RIGHT, YOU ARE OBVIOUSLY WRONG. This causes a lot of wasted time during meetings and also rid of the anyone would felt at meetings.
Other opinions on this and my other opinions are gladly welcomed.

11:09 PM

Perhaps your opinions are right about some people.

I still think you should have respect for other people's feelings.

Would you appreciate being called (or have it implied that you were) immature or stupid? I for one do not, and such comments
just make me feel bad.

114 Kurt I did not mean to imply that so many people were one more time less intelligent. I was talking about the average intelligence occupying the Forum averaged over time (weekly). These "Measurements" were taken whenever I am down here (not very often (due to my own opinion of the IQ, etc.)) and extrapolation from the number of entries by people. Also the low IQ people have an unfortunate tendency to express themselves more often and also louder. This tends to give the place a bad reputation, but that's beside the point. In actuality the majority of people have high intelligence in the club but the time average is low. Several people have also told me that they were not hurt or insulted because they assumed that I was insinuating that they were in the upper IQ group. Oh well. To each his own.

(By the way, this happens to be one of the more intelligent discussions this lay has seen in a long time)

With this, I know this cannot mean become more intelligent

TO ALL WHO MISSED MY PRESENCE AT THE PARTY (CELEBRATION) AFTER THE MEETING. - LISA REQUESTED THAT I BE IN ATTENDANCE AT THE FORUM MEETING SINCE I HAVE RETURNED. I WAS THERE. SILENT, YES, BUT THERE. WHEN THE MEETING BROKE-UP, I LEFT. I WAS AWARE THAT A PARTY HAD BEEN PLANNED TO CELEBRATE MY RETURN. NOW TO EXPLAIN WHY I LEFT.

"PARTY" IMPLIES HAPPINESS AND OF LATE, I'M NOT HAPPY. THE BEHAVIOR I SAW BEFORE AND DURING THE MEETING DID NOT MAKE ME HAPPY.

I'VE ALREADY APOLOGIZED TO LISA FOR THE TROUBLE SHE WENT TO ON MY BEHALF - AND NOT SHOWING UP.

5/4/61 Kurt: I ignored your comments vis-a-vis ~~IQ~~ intelligence. Part of the confusion is due to your use of the term 'IQ' for ~~Intelligence~~ what you call ~~IQ~~ intelligence. IQ means "Intelligence Quotient" and is ~~more~~ basically an exam score. ~~Remember~~ What you called IP is a mixture of ~~the~~ true intelligence (problem solving ~~data~~ gathering), ~~Abstract~~ ~~Practical~~ ~~Intelligence~~

5/4/81 Bye ~~Everyone~~! Be well! I'll be by again soon.

applying what you have ~~learned~~ learned via intelligence to the situation at hand, emotional maturity, and 'common sense' (combination of Praxis and maturity).

You try to present these opinions as ~~an~~ objective or semi-objective observer. Although it's certainly possible you may feel that you are on the outside looking in, you have too much involved to be anything other than a subjective opinion.

You obviously can succeed in academic areas in the sciences at least. This ~~seem~~ seems to me, this indicates ~~for~~ 'above average' intelligence and ~~average~~ praxis. However, I suspect you are not as emotionally mature as you would like us to believe. ~~I, person~~

I am ~~not~~ well aware of my flaws. Some I try to correct, others I do not.

Sometimes the things I say have an undesired effect on others because of situations I am unaware of. You have made some really stupid remarks yourself. I usually try to be a compassionate person. As I remarked before, I think you really don't understand the drastic difference between even the least intelligent Stony Brook student (and I've met some really stupid ones) and many of the people at places like Suffolk Community.

~~Here~~ I'm comparing similar economic strata - 'middle class' - by the way. ~~Stony~~ There are a lot of really dumb people there ~~also~~.

insofar as I could tell - had no physical brain damage resulting in mental retardation. There are people who flunk out of Suffolk doing the same amount of work that I put in at Suffolk and I made the Dean's list there. By the way - the day students are overall a daller, less intelligent bunch than the evening students there.

What this comes down to, is - intelligence etc. are all relatives and not absolutes.

What about aptitudes? Some of what you call an intelligent bunch - ~~new action~~ etc. is due to aptitudes, who is GORDO?

Fred: I refuse to get involved in the discussion on IQ and maturity, other than to say that I'm not happy with the exhibited levels of maturity or intelligence shown by most people in the forum. Due to these feelings, I am spending less and less time down here. I agree, in most, maybe all, ways, with Greg's and Kurt's statements.

In a totally different vein, I would like to organize a serious musical group next year. This group would play "classical rock", both originals and other people's stuff. The people involved must, obviously, read music and play decently. Any instrumental or vocal abilities would be welcome. If you're interested, please write in the logbook. I would play Fender/Rhodes and possible back-up vocals.

Finally, all people I owe money ~~to~~ to, please tell me so I can pay you over the summer.

Fred: Addenda to the band idea:

The following are being considered

Jeff - rhythm guitar

Andy - lead guitar

Tom - saxophone

Lisa - vocals

If you wish to be added, please contact me. We definitely need bass and drums more than anything else. The group will form in September. If you want to write for the group, do so now and over the summer. I see no need for folk songs; this does not include serious/humorous original songs based on SF themes. I (while writing this) just realized that we might be able to get in cars cheap or free if we do an act there. Add to the list

Steve - engineer (higher k sound)

Could it be possible to not use large letters and other space wasting things in your entries. This includes not finishing a page but starting a new one. It used to be bad luck to start a page. Please, we go through log books fast enough.

Fred: I'm interested in writing for your group, and possibly playing. Unfortunately, I do not possess

Fred: Done: either passes a portable, or make the one at your home portable. Good luck

Fred vs. SUSB: I'm not spending the summer on campus. There are no deferments given. I'm presently fighting for fall '81 financial aid. The battle continues.

Gemo: What are you doing here? Fucking Reptiles!
Dora: I didn't try to state my opinion as an objective viewpoint
a matter of fact I said that they were very subjective (by first of all, 5/6)
Also I agree with you that there must be some extremely nice morning people than what I find here. I just hope it's balanced out by more intelligent people elsewhere. Also, of course I shouldn't have mentioned any names in my original entry but I don't think that anyone would have bothered to comment unless I did.
So I putted two people to insult who would probably ignore the insult anyway. (You regarded intelligently while Bob just made some childish comments)
To the person who wrote 'bullshit' after my last entry: what more intelligent conversation has been in this logbook?

To my knowledge, there hasn't been any.
That's per not make your conversation 'correct' and 'more intelligent'.

Fred: Perriane: Yes, I would be very interested in lyrics. Remember, lyrics aren't quite the same as poems. Listen to a normal song & write down the lyrics. See what I mean. By the way, I have no lyrical sense, so the more lyrics other people give me, the better I feel. Any money made by a piece of music whose lyrics are written by someone else will be split 50% lyricist, 50% composer (w).

Let us set the record straight. Fred & I have more or less originated the idea of this band ~~been~~ simultaneously. This will ~~not~~ not be my first band, though...

Suggestions: 1) Great effort should be made to keep a variety of tonality available. Dust off those old 2nd instruments and get a feel for them again. Sure, your main are will be your technical forte, but how much practice does it take to play quarter notes on a glockenspiel.

Secondly, practice delicacy and control. If you can only play one way, we will still see you... when we need that sound. The rest of the time you can dance around and make hot moves with your mikes wires.

2) I love lots of music, but my main inspirations are Pink Floyd, Genesis, Peter Dinklage, ELG, and Zappa. Stuff other people write in this vein will be greeted with sickening displays of gratitude.

I also love to play <sup>the</sup> Beatles and various unrelated pieces of Rock & Roll.

Please write me lyrics, too. Money will be split as per Fred.

Notes:

- 1) I will be here at least through the summer, maybe next year.
- 2) I play electronic / electric sax. The difference between this and "sax" ~~is~~ will become obvious as I add more cute little boxes.
- 3) Instruments played with enthusiasm (and ~~some~~ <sup>variable</sup> competence)
(I own these goodies.)

Alto sax

Recorder (soprano)

Bari sax

Combo organ

Clarinet

Bass

Flute

Harmonium

Vocals

I also ~~with~~ own some PA equipment and ~~now~~ will be building more.

Oh yes:

MAKE EVERY NOTE COUNT

Louis Armstrong

Does anybody have an old tenor or soprano sax lying around?

I will assure you...

Tom

Fred: Musicians: I'm putting in a few reservations on the band. If you want to be in, we will listen. I can't guarantee anyone a position in the band. I can't guarantee that every piece will be played. The membership is open to non-forum people, I just think that there is talent in the forum. I don't want the band to be thought of as an adjunct to the forum,

but as a separate entry. 7d

Kurt and anyone else who's interested:

It's so silly to discuss intelligence, etc.
as being a criteria for judging people. ~~For~~ Forgive me if I am wrong, but it seems to me that the subject being discussed is "Intelligence has decreased since last year in the Forum."
I didn't spend a lot of time down here
last year basically because of the hated put downs, cheap shit wars, and "everyone's an asshole except me" attitude. Fortunately those who were the ~~source~~ ~~main~~ main source of the complaints became so high and mighty and fed up ~~undecided~~ decided to leave. So what is left is a peaceful group of people who are having a hell of a lot of fun and yes they even care about each other. More than once I've been up a paddle without a creek, ~~for~~ and different people from the forum have come to help. For instance - I've needed transportation I've needed to borrow money, and sometimes just someone to talk to.

Sure, everyone has their faults. But who is anyone to judge another? And so what if someone is not as intelligent as someone else?
Bag took my cats and gave them a decent home
when I really needed to find a home for them.
And Dara, I must admit, really is growing up.
~~Even~~ Give the guy some credit & his put up with a hell of a lot of shit dumped on him in this place - whether he deserved it or not.

Enough.

All - Physics final in 1 hr, 45 mins. UGH!!

Sarah - I don't believe that the intelligence or maturity level has decreased since last year; it was low then and it's the same now.

Fred (Tom) - I can't write lyrics blindly; I need a tune first! That is the difference between writing poetry (which I cannot do) and writing lyrics (which I believe I can do).

Joe - Cheer up! You don't have to take a physics final!

All - Be nice to Lisa, she needs it.

Jeff - If you haven't done so yet, get Ling to the hospital if her lungs don't clear up. I'd do it myself but I don't have any time right now.

All - Good luck on finals!

When I write lyrics I generally like to have the melody first also - it makes it easier to have the musicality in my head and find the words to fit it. Of course I have some lyrics which you are welcome to put music to.
And if you let me know quickly
you can have a couple within a week.
Let me know what kind of subjects
you'd like to write about, because I tend to do romantic stuff, and I don't know if you want that.

Open invitation is extended to all:
I will be in Colorado Colorado from June 1 to the 4th week of August.
If anyone wants to come visit,

please feel totally free to do so. We love having company. The address is in the file.

I am here alone. Temporarily.
My loving roomie has returned and is in good spirits!

George is very sick. We bought him some pink stuff to help him
out so he should be okay soon.
Please be nice to him.

I skated down here and I'm tired. I already skated for 1 1/2 hours today. I hope someone slows up with a car (or truck)

Pardon me - just thinking aloud
or on paper, as the case may be.
I'm beginning to feel creative so
I'm going to disappear and write.

#4: Are you implying that nobody down here is capable of carrying on an intelligent conversation/discussion in the log?

Sarah: I did not make any judgments on anybody. I think that everyone down here is a nice person. Meanwhile you seem to be judging the people who left the farm last year. After you see ways I am not discussing the down side of intelligence since last year. I am only talking about the worst intelligence. You can begin. Also the people who left the farm do care about each other and often help create the public people. Also they were quite paid! They don't carry around weapons and don't break people. One more thing, congratulations on your 145 IQ. Unfortunately, I don't think it means anything as I said in previous entries. By the way, from your log entries it seems like your foreign run problem seems to have been started by you. I hope things work out well.

Kurt: Ah - it continues. You forget - I ~~so~~ happened to have been in love with one of the high and mighty elitists who left and I still happen to like you people. I may not approve of people's actions but that doesn't mean I disapprove of the people. So anyway - this discussion seems to be increasingly watered down (the missing creek?) and we are just about agreeing with each other on issues - just differing in attitudes which seems to be a common occurrence. Such is life.

Concerning the foreign men, no, I didn't ask for it. They asked <sup>was</sup> me to dance, and being the idiot I ~~am~~ I said okay. I'm used to American men who consider a dance ~~a~~ a dance and not an invitation to bed. They are now taken care of, unfortunately I had to ~~be~~ be molested with one but that's another story. I realize previous entries would point to my guilt in the matter, but this was not the case.

So say hi to everyone in 306. I'll be up some time next week and perhaps I'll run into you then. Take care - Sarah

P.S. Margaret has given me permission to quote her:

Fret: I have your ACE of ACEs

Ferret: ~~Try~~ (I'm re:book) ~~Try~~ again.

(Charlie: ~~some~~ About last night -

~~the~~ careless or unwise actions in roleplaying are not ~~that~~ annoying to me, nor is ~~that's~~ moderate foolishness. ~~F~~ Sheer idiocy on the part of the players gets me annoyed. Being a novice is not an excuse for ~~that~~ idiotic remarks ~~as~~ by the Player for the character or in general (exception: brash, stupid characters played by smart players whose characters say stupid things is an ~~exception~~ a different situation). As far as being ~~novice~~ the excuse of total ineptness just because of being a novice - bullshit.

At LASTCON, there were two novices that I recall being in the expedition. One was playing a giant and did a decent job of it. The other was a gal who played a female Dwarf and did as good a job as ~~any~~ many ~~the~~ experienced role-players and better than some.

I can be somewhat hard on people without intending to be so. You seem ~~to~~ say I coerced you into playing - ridiculous. I coerced Bob because he made ~~a~~ a bargain with me and I wanted him to keep his part after I kept mine. I cajoled Rusty and invited you and Pope. I am <sup>not</sup> willing to let you try again but I suggest talking about role-playing with Rusty, Greg, Fred, Margaret, John Fo or ~~my~~ me or possibly Lisa. These are the people that can probably give you some decent advice on role-playing a character - developing a personality

for it that is distinct from your own.
(These are not the only experienced role-players - just those I think ~~are~~ ~~the~~ ~~best~~ ~~develop~~ role-play
recently and develop interesting and distinct personalities for their characters).
Note that I am not talking about what to do in a melee but how to ~~act in a~~ ~~bring~~ bring your characters
to life. Who is GORNO? It's driving me nuts!
Tom: Looks that way.

DM shouldn't tell the players what to do, even if they won't go, explore the old maze or if they graduate each other into killing themselves. It's part of role-playing, is independent action - doing what the character would do in part, but the player has to choose between many alternatives.

It's the player's choice, not the DM's. The DM also shouldn't whine at the players.

What said? (probably not)

Charlie: Your choice of action shouldn't be inhibited by who is PC and who is NPC.

Your character really can't talk the difference.

However, if you kill an NPC, that's generally the end of his peace sometimes hold a grudge.

Pope: Yes, I know the game was slow.

Among other things, I couldn't always hear what was being said by the players, due to more background noise than usual (I can deal with conversations in the background, but with three people all trying to talk at once over the not-so-dull roar...).

By the way, the three other expeditions that explored this area all decided to investigate the small hut that looked like a hill - you didn't.

What the character would do is interpretation on the players part. As for whining - ~~Charlie's actions~~ ~~weren't~~ ~~down right stupid~~ ~~and harassing~~ to me ~~not~~ because things weren't going the way I want - that rarely happens - but because he ~~he~~ wouldn't let me do things in some quasi-organized fashion. ~~It was a mistake~~

The group was dismantling and setting up camp and I was giving the group as a whole information about what you encountered. Charlie interrupted me by talking - literally behind my back - to you. Both of you should have been listening to what I was saying. Next time I will not sit where I sat, but over by ~~where~~ where Rusty was instead.

5/9 All - I have just finished writing to 15 medical schools for applications. You don't know what boredom is until you've typed the same letter fifteen times!

From what I've been reading, it seems that I was lucky to miss Dana's adventure. It appears that great deal of ineptitude on both DM's + players' parts made it into a disaster.

Greg - I have something for you. Don't leave Stony Brook without it.

Dana - I probably ought to know better than to get involved, but I think that you are in no position to criticize his role-plan.

recall that all of your characters were loud-mouthed, pompous, obnoxious and irritating. That's probably why they got

~~Do homosexuals~~

Do fetuses have a soul?

Do ~~homosexuals~~ choose to be gay, or is it caused by genetic/environmental ~~factors~~ forces beyond their control? (And if so, than which one?)

Is there any chance that when, if ever, will we start to send men to the other planets?

Can man ever be free? (that is, can a man in modern day society be politically free to do whatever he wishes, whenever he wishes?)

But which is more important: the right to ~~total~~ total liberty for the individual, or the duty to follow the ethics of a society you live in, especially if you don't believe in it.

Can a struggling young Jewish writer with no money, no car and no chocolate chip cookies ever find love and happiness with a beautiful young Irish Catholic lass from an upper income family who needs to drive to the corner store to pick up a pack of cigarettes? (Actually, I don't think I want to have my opinions on this one, but it couldn't hurt.)

I'm sorry, I'm just tired of reading about dumb things ~~isn't~~ [read: things I don't care about] in the big book. I guess it doesn't matter; I'll be home in T-92 hours (and 18 minutes) and counting.

Danny: Explain the "Irish Catholic Law"

John

Perrienne: Not all my characters are loud mouthed etc. Kensie Graime was, and he didn't die. Kurt Levitan ~~he~~ wasn't and he didn't die (Actually, he got rich)

Eachan Kahn died in a fire fight in Rescue on Ruie. In TTT my Demon was irritating. ~~to~~ He was a Demon for cryin' out loud. ~~He~~ I ran a Dwarf, and he was nasty, short and brutish. He didn't die, Margaret grew horns on him. In cts,

Hundric (my power word mystic) was rather low key, but did get rather pissed with Thalia and I while Greg's Calthalia was Hundric as an employee and spoke out about it. He ~~it~~ talked my way out of that rather nicely.

Rabbi Meishy is not loud-mouthed ~~or~~ nor pompous. He has some annoying habits which could be considered irritating.

Gideon is normal-personality-wise.
Hundric died of old age in the interrogation of Rusty's campaign. The Rabbi and Gideon are alive and well.

In short, you have insufficient data. Danny

Dan: You're right about Lyrical/Composer.
It is one of Amanda's many accomplishments,
and the reason I didn't list it was mainly because I was talking about music making talents, not music creating talents... even though the latter are much more important...

Bar: It is 12:00!!!
Where are you???

Dan: as for your questions:

1. I don't know. I am not sure even what a soul is and whether all adults have souls...
2. Probably both choice and environmental factors. Possibly genetic factors as well, but I kind of doubt it...
3. Sept 13 1987
4. A civilized adult who is self-aware is always free,
where ever he or she is...
5. There is no such thing as "total liberty".
A person is his own warden...
But if I had to choose between something I believe in and a societal ethic, society
could go Fuck itself...
6. As to your last question:

An unqualified YES!

Mom: Happy mothers day!!!
Are you happy???

Bap: It's 12:07

Where are you???

Dan: I think I'm beginning to get on Amanda's nerves. She asked me to only call her every other day.
She's running out of things to talk about... But then,
I haven't been doing too much talking... just listening...

All: Does any body have a can of:

I know two ~~people~~ ~~days~~ brats
I would like to use it on...

Bap: It's 12:12... where are you???

Fellow Forumites: I'm beginning to find Role playing and wargaming boring.
Why ~~spend~~ your time killing/living/dying
in a Fantasy land when you could be creating in the Real world?
What about looking at all the pretty things in nature and going into the city to see the art museums and sitting on the grass in the sun writing poetry?

N.B.: The above is not a criticism. It is merely a question I have been asking myself for some time.

Bap: It's 12:18. Where are you?

Here is a lyric from a song by

of my camp. I don't know which one of you did this, but it wouldn't have happened if ~~it didn't~~ the hatch had been latched. The hinges had been broken from rough usage, but I'm not blaming anyone for that. I do think it's incredible that someone couldn't even clip the latch (No, it can't have come loose), when it was obvious that the cover's hinges were broken. That hatch cover weighed quite a bit, and if it had come off in front of someone on the freeway it could easily have gone through a windshield. Now the rain has soaked everything in the back. Hi Hi. Happy Mother's Day to all you mothers-

Tenet - Reading your entries makes me want to sit down and converse with
you. Amanda - role playing - Life - Wonderful topics for discussion. Sit in touch, I'll be around.

Denny - Can't help it. I must respond to those profound questions.

1. Concerning Soul - I believe there is one Soul - this being God, and we are all reflections of that Soul, reflecting different qualities yet having all divine qualities. Kind of like drops of an ocean - but alas I can't carry that illustration to the extent I'd like to because eventually all illustrations fail. Anyway - the idea is that ~~each~~ man does not have an individual soul, but instead reflects divine Soul. It's basically an irrelevant statement (question) to ask if a fetus has a soul. (Abortion is a different topic but you didn't ask about that.)

2. Concerning homosexuals - I don't know and I don't find it important. Morally homosexuality isn't right, but then I'm not to judge another, especially with my past deeds of recent weeks. Again, to discuss if homosexuality is right is not
the question, but the cause of it.

3. As soon as possible. A few words of wisdom to live by.

If something is right, nothing can stop it, and if something is wrong, who wants it? Also - God doesn't give man anything to deal with that he can't handle, so I believe that when we do get people on other planets - it will be just as successful as Columbia's recent trip.

4. There is only freedom within discipline; otherwise man will live under such a constant state of fear, it would be worse than any political system on earth at present.

5. ditto.

6. It depends. But like I said, I'm willing to supply the chocolate chip cookies if it will help.

As you can see by my somewhat metaphysical responses, I just spent a weekend at home, a wonderful source of spiritual refreshment. I also did three Christian Science services this weekend. I was 1st reader for one at Kings Park Psychiatric Hospital, ditto at Pilgrim State today, and my regular solo job at Southampton Church. Such is life.

Dana - Why do you waste so much space talking of inconsequential and utterly boring roleplaying garbage? Keep it out!

Breg - Thank - you're a sweetie.

Enough for now. Leave Lisa alone - She'll tell you if she feels like it.

P.S. To all- If some of this Christian Science stuff offends anyone, I apologize. Please don't start arguments with me about it because it will lead to nowhere. If anyone wants to discuss it, I'd be glad to, but not in the logbook.

Sarah ~~says that~~ my entries concerning role-playing are of some consequence to role-players.

If it bores you, don't read it.

The Forum has had innumerable discussions about what does/doesn't belong in the logbook.

They all reach the same conclusion:

Ev's ~~stupid~~ "Wimpy Olympics" entry in one of the logbooks last year.

The majority of the forum regulars are gamers and/or role-players. Have you tried role-playing?

4-11-81 9<sup>00</sup> AM ALL: SINCE THIS IS THE END OF THE SEMESTER, I IMAGINE THAT A FEW WORDS ARE APPROPRIATE.

FIRST, ABOUT MYSELF: PRESENTLY I AM NOT ENLISTING IN THE USAF. I MAY TRANSFER SCHOOLS IN JANUARY. I WILL PROBABLY WORK PART TIME ON CAMPUS OVER THIS SUMMER VACATION. OTHER THAN THIS, MY FUTURE IS UNCERTAIN TO ME.

NEXT, FOR EVERYONE ELSE (IN NO PARTICULAR ORDER):

SARAH: YOUR ENTRIES OF LATE SHOW YOU TO BE AN INTERESTING PERSON. I DON'T KNOW YOU TOO WELL, BUT MAYBE SOMEDAY WE MIGHT CHAT AWILE AND CHANGE WHAT. I WISH YOU MUCH HAPPINESS WITH YOUR FUTURE, AND AM SURE YOU'LL BE A FINE C.S. NURSE, BEING THE CARING PERSON THAT YOU ARE.

DANNY: I HIGHLY ENJOY YOUR ENTRIES. YOU'LL BE A FINE WRITER SOME DAY, IF YOU TRY. BEST WISHES TO YOU.

DANA: SOME PEOPLE MAY FIND YOU A BIT ANNOYING AT TIMES, AND EVEN THOUGH I MAY ACT THE SAME WAY, I DO LIKE YOU. ENJOY YOUR SUMMER. IF YOU LIKE ROLEPLAYING THEN DO SO. BE READY FOR GREATNESS—YOU HAVE NO PLACE TO GO, BUT UP. Well, well.

TOM: WE'VE HAD OUR DIFFERENCES IN THE PAST, BUT ALWAYS IN THE NAME OF FUN. YOU TRY VERY HARD TO DO A LOT, MY ONLY ADVICE IS THAT YOU DON'T ~~TALK~~ TAKE ON SO MUCH ANYMORE. I HOPE ALL GOES WELL WITH YOU IN ALL YOUR COMING ENDEAVORS.

RUSTY: YOU ARE A KNOWLEDGEABLE AND FUN PERSON TO LISTEN TO. YOU SEEM TO HAVE A GIFT FOR DEALING WITH PEOPLE. DO ANYTHING, FOR WHAT EVER YOU, I'M SURE YOU'LL BE HAPPY. GOOD LUCK.

JOHN F.: KEEP TRYING AND YOU MAY FIND YOURSELF ON TOP.
(ON TOP OF WHAT I CAN'T SAY.) TAKE CARE.

KURT: ALTHOUGH YOUR DISCUSSIONS MAY INVOLVE CONCEPTS AND IDEAS THAT I CONSIDER INTANGIBLE, YOU SEEM TO BE ABLE TO HOLD SANE, CALM, AND RATIONAL DISCUSSIONS WITH OTHERS. THIS IS SOMETHING THAT MANY, INCLUDING MYSELF DON'T ALWAYS ACCOMPLISH.

GREG: WHAT I CAN I SAY OTHER THAN CONGRATULATIONS
ON GRADUATING. BEST OF LUCK IN ALL YOU DO.

POPE: WHY DON'T YOU LEGALIZE YOUR CHURCH AND SAVE
A LOT OF TAX MONEY, THAT IS, WHEN YOU START PAYING TAXES. IT'S BEEN FUN, SO DON'T STOP DOING WHATEVER IT IS YOU DON'T DO.

SLIME: DEFINATELY A LITTLE (LOT?) STRANGE! MOST PEOPLE DIE ONLY THICK HAIR, AND RARELY GREEN EVEN THEN, BUT NEVER THEIR BODIES.

FRED: I HOPE ALL GOES WELL FOR YOU BUT OTHER THAN THAT, I DON'T THINK THAT THERE IS ANYTHING
I COULD SAY NOW THAT YOU DON'T ALREADY KNOW.
I MAY SEE YOU THIS SUMMER, IF YOU'RE ON CAMPUS
AT ALL, BUT IF I DON'T CONSIDER YOURSELF LUCKY.

FERRET: YOU SEEM TO BE VERY HAPPY AT THIS TIME.
NO ONE CAN ASK FOR MORE THAN THAT.
I KNOW MOST PEOPLE REALLY DON'T LISTEN TO THE WORDS OF OTHERS (MOST OF ALL ME) BUT PLEASE TRY TO LISTEN TO THIS. IF YOU WANT THINGS TO WORK OUT BETWEEN YOU AND AMANDA, DON'T FORCE IT.
I CARE ALSO, BUT SOMETIMES I THINK IT IS A DANGEROUS ATTITUDE TO HAVE. PEOPLE WHO CARE CAN EASILY BE HURT.

NANCY: I DON'T AGREE WITH SOME OF WHAT YOU SAY, BUT FOR REASONS I WON'T SHARE NOW, I'D LIKE TO TALK WITH SOME DAY(S), MAINLY TO JUST LISTEN. AND AS A 'GOOD CHRISTIAN GIRL' I HOPE YOUR GOD SHINES DOWN UPON WHATEVER PATHS THROUGH LIFE THAT YOU DECIDE TO TAKE.

LISA: SOME THINGS ARE BETTER LEFT UNSAID (TO PARAPHRASE A COMMON SAYING), INCLUDING THE EXPLANATION TO THIS ITSELF. I'M SURE EVERYTHING WILL TURN OUT FINE WITH YOUR KNEE, AND YOUR HOSPITAL STAY MAY NOT BE AS BAD AS YOU IMAGINE IT TO BE. MAY GOOD REVERSE RAIN DOWN UPON YOUR LIFE.

BAP: SUNGLASSES IN THE DARK? YOU HAVE A FLAIR FOR LIFE THAT IS MOST HEART WARMING & A TRUE INSPIRATION, AND TYPICAL ITALIAN. DECIDE WHAT YOU GOING TO DO WITH YOURSELF, BUT ~~DO NOT~~ DON'T BECOME A CHEF, THE CUSTOMERS WILL NEVER GET WHAT THEY ORDER.

PERDANNE: GOOD LUCK AND BEST WISHES. I'M SURE YOUR LETTERS TO MEDICAL SCHOOLS WILL TURN OUT TO BE A SMALL PRICE FOR THE FUTURE SUCCESS I'M SURE YOU'LL HAVE.

MARGARET: ON THE OUTSIDE YOU ARE ONE PERSON BUT HIDDEN WITHIN IS A PERSON WHO REALLY CARES ABOUT THOSE AROUND YOU. IT'S A RARE QUALITY THAT YOU HAVE, I HOPE YOU ALWAYS KEEP IT. SOME DAY I MIGHT UNDERSTAND YOU.

JAM: ONE OF MY ALL TIME FAVORITE PEOPLE. KEEP IN TOUCH, I DO LIVE CLOSE TO YOU KNOW, AND IF THERE IS EVER ANYTHING I CAN DO, JUST ASK.

IN CLOSING : I KNOW THERE ARE PERSONS THAT I OMITTED, BECAUSE I SIMPLY DON'T HAVE THE TIME NOW TO MAKE ANY MORE ENTRIES.

FINALLY - THE FORUM HAS BEEN THE BEST TIME OF MY LIFE, SINCE I'VE BEEN AT S.U.S.B FOR THESE PAST TWO YEARS.
THE REASON FOR THIS IS THE PEOPLE, YOU'RE
THE BEST (ADDRESSED TO ALL FORUM MEMBERS HEARING THIS) I WISH IT NEVER HAD TO

EVENTS MUST COME TO PASS.

Sarah: No I didn't forget which is why I was puzzled with your entry. It seemed to contradict what I thought you R/H) Of course we're starting to come with each other. That's the proper result of discussing. Different views discussed in a logical and reasonable manner often have the effect of causing a compromise or rather a slight altering of opinion. I have seen several intelligent comments on this discussion and therefore conclude that there is definitely more intelligence ~~to~~ here than is usually seen. Also Margaret is wrong. If a person disagrees with me and can tell me why I will probably think him/her much more intelligent than the person who agrees with me without telling me why.

On another topic, If you want to could you tell me why you think that homosexuality is morally wrong? Have fun in Colorado!

~~There~~ Sarah: Enjoy. Keep in touch, I'll miss you.

Steve: Yes, most people can walk and chew gum at the same time. ~~That's~~

However ~~if~~ if they consciously (sp?) think about what is required while they are doing it, many people have severe difficulties.

Danny: According to Ferret, Amanda ~~was~~ had requested that he stop calling every night. This prompted my remark. You missed the point, not I.

Ferret

An interest is an interest, whoever's interest it may be.

Robert A. Heinlein, science-fiction writer, on jacks-off - "trades"

A human being should be able to chase a droper, plan an invasion, butcher a hog, cook a ship, design a building, write a sonnet, balance accounts, build a wall, set a bone, comfort

the dying, take orders, give orders,
cooperate, but alone, pitch, negotiate,
solve equations, analyze a new 'problem', program a computer, cook a tasty meal, fight efficiently, die gallantly.

a fare-well party in the sense
original sense, ("Good-bye") ~~it is curce~~ "farewell" is currently used as a synonym for "Good-bye". The party is to cheer Lisa up and take her mind off of her impending

24.

Should I give a goodbye speech/pentey
as a few others are doing. Alas. Such things pain me. Stonybrook is the 12th school I've attended in 14 years. I've lived in 13 different towns (that I could remember off-hand) and I've said too many goodbyes. I started keep a journal in 11th grade. In it I began to examine my behavior and personality
and all that and I found a lot of things
I didn't like. I had built up a big wall which I hid behind. I could never cry in front of anyone or let others see me with real feelings or human things.
This was especially apparent in my

5/12/81
2:50 AM
Sarah

acting. I could never let myself go.
So with massive soul searches in my journals and with the help of an extremely special friend (well known who he is should he happen to see this), I learned to cry in front of someone, and to be human. I have even opened up enough to let myself be hurt.

I used to be very aggressive, as a cover-up I suppose. I am still aggressive, but now because I think people need
it; to help them come out of themselves.
Anyways - after taking this acting class, I can see how much I've grown as a person. I cried on stage in front of everyone. I let myself portray a lesbian and come up with the courage to have the feelings - something I would have been very uncomfortable - even incapable of doing previously.

So the whole point of this is
the following:

In all my moving around I was usually able to say goodbye because I'd already had those defenses up. Now I have let them down. I've become vulnerable.
Yes, I have made the conscious decision to leave, but still it's out of necessity. I shall miss Stonybrook. The people. There's so much good, and warmth, if one is willing to look. Now can I say goodbye to two years of myself? Can I say goodbye to puddle splashing, roller skating, singing
at the top of my lungs in the Fine Arts Plaza, those perverted jilt songs, the men in my bed (love everyone of them),
macaroni and cheese for supper again,
the beloved Rainy Night House in cages.

with veggie cream cheese, my twin, the many all-nighters, and the dear, dear love of my life whom I shared so much with - my life. What's to be done. What's to be said.
Nothing. I cannot say good-bye.

I feel like writing much more about all sorts of other - more interesting topics but I'm beginning to fall asleep. - Yes Sarah may as well spend the night in the forest. I've never done it yet.

Transportation: Currently, I am planning to take Amtrak. Any who are interested in renting a car and getting riders, I am interested. We need a driver, though.

Ok. Here I tackle philosophical issues.
Anyone who doesn't care, feel free to skip.

① Do fetuses have souls? That depends on whether you mean HUMAN fetuses, and also whether people in general have "souls". What is a "soul"?

I don't know what a soul is, so how can I say whether any given object has one? How can you tell?

② Do homosexuals choose to be gay?

By a "choice", I assume an action based on free will is ~~more~~ meant. Certainly any sexual act is (usually - few exceptions) an act of free will. You therefore choose to perform homosexual acts (or choose not to.) But by "homosexual" we usually mean a queer, or gay-boy, somebody who performs first as a sex. (Side note: this is a relatively new concept. Before the last approx 30 yrs., it wasn't considered a choice or choice.) Is a preference a choice? Do you choose to prefer corn over green beans? No, it's a result of environmental factors. Same with homosexuality, but different factors, which I suspect include a screwed-up pedipal complex and anal fixation.

③ When will men get to other planets? As when they get tired of it.

④ Can men ever be free? Yes, but only by a violent revolution to overthrow the state. Personal freedom is the most important thing one can have, which is unfortunately under attack by our society.

⑤ Is there a struggle between gay and straight?
No. It's a war.

8:30 PM.

Danny - About your questions:

- ① There is no such thing as a "you"; it is an artificial construct of the human psyche. Ergo, fetuses do not have souls.
  - ② Undoubtedly, some homosexuals choose to be gay, but I suspect that such a choice is greatly influenced by early environmental conditioning. Most homosexuals claim not to have chosen their sexual preference and I have no reason to question their veracity. It seems highly unlikely that there is any genetic component to homosexuality, and if there is one, cultural factors are of much greater import.
  - ③ Probably not in my lifetime (and I don't expect to die young).
  - ④ This question is meaningless since what a person wishes to do is determined by the culture in which one is raised.
  - ⑤ Total liberty is impossible. Following the prevailing mores of your society is often an act of self-preservation. Therefore, unless you are self-destructive, you follow the ethics of the society or leave. Your own ethical code is shaped by your society, as I have mentioned.
  - ⑥ Not if he's allergic to cigarette smoke.
- By the way, you've misspelled "dumb" and I don't find your questions profound, merely abstruse.

All - I will need people to help me pack my shit into mom's car on Friday. I'll let you know by Thursday what time. Thanks.

⑦ Does anyone want to go out to dinner Wednesday night. I'd love to go over to Danny's Jam Bar to celebrate the end of finals. We could treat Lisa. I think she'd like that.

In them and

Pana - with regards to your criticism (???) of my role playing abilities - you can take your opinions and shove
them up your pretty (stupid)
bumside face!! The only reason I got involved in that was because you pestered all of us to the point where we had little other alternative! We would all have been perfectly happy playing Cosmic Encounters! So don't you dare complain about my role-playing. Instead, go show your head in the john and play L.O.
S with the Tody Bowl Man!
Berianne ~~your~~ your idea is excellant!! I'd enjoy that too.
But what am I going to do with cake & cookies? AH WELL I'll find a place for them somewhere > w/p =

Danny - Homosexuality is definitely a choice, one which, I might add,
far more people have made ~~at one~~ than ever will admit to it. What you are discussing ~~however~~ <sup>though</sup> however is not so much homosexuality as gay gascity which is as much a social as it is a sexual decision.

Do you like to go to a bar, pick
a person you find sexy whom you like to fuck, take him/her home and have a wham! Bam! Yankee-ma'am!
session, then do the same thing all over tomorrow night? There is very definitely a gay counterculture which underlies in this sort of behavior.

When you ask if people choose to be gay you mean do they wish to join this culture. That's all. It's quite simple.

really.

I hereby seal this entry
with the following curse:

At May any and all who sneer upon this most high and noble entry go to sleep with itchy bottoms and arise with an irresistible urge to pick

The Kliss speaks and the forum shall listen;

On this day of May 12, my nearly last day of normal consciousness, I hereby propose that the forum shall hold a wake for me due to the fact that the extremely unfounded view that I shall become seriously decomposed on Mom's rigor mortis has already set in. Will noone bury me with chocolate ice cream? Or perhaps on a bed of whipped cream with a vibrator and a whip? Maybe Charlie a package in a plain brown wrapper which shall contain my said unaccomplished life that left me at age 22, a mere vegetable with no brain cells.

Actually Charlie, you should not have even thought of telling me of this surprise since others wanted it kept safe and secret. So learn the fine art of silence.

Good luck to all with finals though I am a bit late for some. Thanks to all of you for making the Kliss warm and mushy and very, very glad that she knows all of you. I love most of you, there are few exceptions. Even those are becoming fewer.

The reason this is so badly typed is because I am snickering all the while with mirth anew. Nandy, when I am dead and gone you may endeavor to find my nonexistent pulse.

Rusty, you lovable thing, you are wonderful and kind and I love you dearly. George, you are a sneak and a snurg and you remind me of a slithery thing.

Sneaky lying insidious malicious evil, thank you for last night, I am getting better in more ways than one.

Mark, all I can say is thank you.

Meryl, ah high and good luck in hospital. You mean a lot to me and I send much love.

Alyse, do not fear the nightly noises. The evil math teacher holds no great power against you.

Perrienne, a goodly suggestion is yours.

Margaret, how is motherhood?

Jan, I don't have anything to say to you, either.

Fred, I know we have had hard times but I still care. Good luck to you in all your endeavors and try to remember that you are a very intelligent and creative person.

Tom, arrangements about the chair are being discussed. I will be in touch. I love you and you ~~have been a~~ great help to me in the past.

Greg, good luck to you in all things good and prosperous. I ~~now~~ I remember fondly all the fun times we have had.

Jeff, you ugly mug, there are times ~~no~~ . . .

Pafet, I love you, too. You are a warm and kind person!

Well, tired of typing, so I will write more later.

The klise has done with speaking so the forum/Jan now go to sleep.

hard day of finals

Since most of this forum is very dear to me, I won't bother with all the mushy stuff. I just wanted to thank everyone for everything they did. Yeah, you fools, this is it. You've been there when I needed you; thanks again.

Paul Foster

This will probably be one of my last entries in a Forum logbook...

V # 3 away!!!! (No, it isn't what you think...)
(V = Virginity)

V # 1 was liquor (specifically lemon beer)

It broke down some barriers and made me wish to always be like I was when I was slightly drunk. Rather than remain drunk for the rest of my life, I decided to change my attitudes and do some "intellectual spring cleaning" and wipe out some barriers for ever.

V # 2 was Rocky Horror. I had never seen it before. It was not so much a movie as an experience. It made me realize that what other people do affects me, and what I do affects other people. It gives me a basis for responsibility.

V # 3 was originally intended to be sex, but I have changed my mind. Sex without caring is just a form of mutual masturbation.

Sex often cheapens an otherwise good relationship, and (though this may seem contradictory) often interferes with intimacy. Sex can (and in my opinion should be an expression of love and caring. Yet in our society it has about the same significance to most people as shaking hands. To me, at least, it means more. Virginity is not something to be cast aside like a thing without purpose. It can serve to create a lasting bond between people. I plan to have children and raise them to be people. Sex to me is a way of starting that process, and I wish to make sure that any woman I plan to spend the rest of my life with would feel the same way that I do. I seek a relationship with a strong (emotionally and mentally) woman who cares. Such people are not easy to find, and whenever I meet one, I do not wish to lose her.

Perhaps what made me realize this was seeing the sun rise this morning. It was the first time I ever saw it from a good view (the Health Sciences tower). It made me realize how much more life has to offer than wasting away your life in bed. Thus, I claim seeing the sun rise as my third last virginity, and now I no longer worry about it.

There is so much to see and do and listen to and feel and smell and taste and experience in this world. Sex is only a small part...

As I said before: I would much rather know a person's mind than their body. Externals are not what are important, Internals are!! Beauty of Body can (and most likely will) be lost through aging, accident or disease. Beauty of Mind is something that is never lost...

I shall say my good byes now, and perhaps try to pass on some words of wisdom. I do not claim to know all the answers, I do not claim to know all the questions, and I do not even claim that I am right about anything. If what I say is wrong, then disregard it. But I ask you to at least consider what I say...

(My apologies for the green ink if you find it hard to read, but I have been writing in green since I started writing in this logbook [9/29]. To me, it symbolizes life, for I am back from the dead. The Paul Fernhout that came to Stony Brook died by his own hand. The Paul Fernhout who leaves Stony Brook has decided that life is worth living, even if he doesn't know why.)

Sap: You were my Friend when I came here and you are my Friend as I leave. We have shared sorrows my friend, and I hope that you can solve your problems as I have solved mine. Remember always that if there is something worth getting depressed over, there is something worth living for. This thought has stayed my hand, and I hope it might stay yours.

Bap, I consider you a friend.
Live long and prosper...

Margaret: I know you care. For that I respect you and admire you. You were a tower of strength that I could hit my head against when I felt most self-destructive. I really mean it when I consider you as a mother to me. Even if you did not realize it (as I didn't even realize it) you have taught me much. My wish for you is that you find someone who understands you, and what you need.
Live long and prosper.
I give you my friendship,
and I ask humbly for yours.
You are a beautiful person.

Steve: I feel a kinship to you because I see in you many of the same qualities/abilities/conflicts I see in myself. I made the assumption that other people are aware. It has greatly enriched my life. Perhaps it could do so for you. Always remember that there are people in the Forum who care. I spent over a month avoiding the Forum and making myself feel alone when friends were just a short walk away.

May your questing mind find peace.

I consider You a brother in spirit... You showed me the error in my ways.

Live long and find happiness...

Meryl: What can I say to you?
You are a person...
My only request of you is that you remember your own strengths.
Don't spread yourself too thin.
There is only so much one person can hope to do. You cannot be everywhere and with everyone, so choose carefully for yourself and those you care about most.
You care. If ever a hamburger and a magic trick saved a life... Thank you.
I know you will live long and prosper.

Pope: Thank you also. Your religion actually has something to it. (And I mean actually.) I would just be sure I had my definition of cheap thrill down right...
Be of good cheer! Life is worth living!
And talk with your friends when they do something that you feel is unfair.

Live long and prosper.
And remember, the ultimate cheap
thrill is life itself.

Sai: I respect you. You are a person who cares, and a person who has much going for her, even if it doesn't seem so at first. You have a difficulty that I would find almost insurmountable, yet you live with it every day and conquer it. To do such takes a strong will to live.

You have a strong heart Lisa,
and I wish for you only the best.
~~Don't~~ <sup>Don't</sup> mind asking things of people who care.
I would always be happy to read to you.
It makes me feel needed or at least usefull. Those are good feelings.
You should feel both as well Lisa.

Live long and prosper...
And never forget: The mind
is the most powerfull tool
in the universe.

Bill + Howard: You are both people who have said you respect me. What for?
You respect me for my ~~matural~~ talents.
That is not something worthy of respect. My intellect is just another tool I have. You would not respect a black smith solely because he had been given a great set of tools would you? You would respect a black smith for his work, what he produces. If you want someone worthy of respect, try Lisa.
You should respect people for what they make of what they have,
not because they started out with four aces...

Sarah: I do not know you that well,
but from what I have seen you are a person who cares.
Remember that in caring for others,
one cares about one's self.

May the path you choose lead to happiness.

Danq: There is much about you I like and admire. You mean well. Your intentions are usually good. What you mean however, is not always what you say, or at least is not interpreted as such. Perhaps if you listen to and watch yourself you will see what I mean. There is much potential in you. Make sure you realize it.

Live long and prosper...
And may you meet with understanding wherever you go.

George: I have a feeling that somewhere beneath that mercenary exterior is a caring heart. You are a very perceptive person, or at least you do not miss the obvious. You have some common sense (a rare commodity) even if you find it more fun to act otherwise. Don't let the world destroy you, but don't destroy it either...

Live long and prosper.
Remember: The world is both more and less bloody than you can ever imagine.

Sam: You took me to see the sunrise, for that I am forever in your debt. You are a good person. Never let that spark of life in you die.

Live long and prosper.
(Never forget to laugh (although I don't go ever will.)

Cal: Calatraw doesn't work. I tried. I can't take the boredom. Thank you.

for helping me realize the hypocrisy
of my ways. I appreciate you.
There are many ways to do things,
and many points of view. If we considered them all individually
we would never get anything done.
Have the courage to act as your wisdom directs, even if others
disagree. "A good plan today is better than a perfect plan tomorrow."

I think you said
that.

Live long, prosper, and may your affairs prosper...

Kurt: As you can see, I stopped my discourse on I, Qi with you. I feel that there a better things to write in the log;
more constructive things. Note that this is in no way a criticism of what you wrote. I just chose to spend my time doing other things.
Besides, there are too many definitional problems... I don't believe that you intended to hurt anyone, and that's what counts.

Persistence: You are a good person. I disagree with some of your scientific views, but I hold them once myself. You are a person with a keen mind.
Never forget to use it well. Make the most of every opportunity.
Don't become the cold scientist.
There are too many around ~~already~~, and many of them aren't even scientists...

Live long and prosper...

Don't forget that you are a human being... I did once and I still regret it.

John F: Live long and prosper friend,
what can I say to you?

Nancy: You seem to care, yet often you let your fears and prejudices get in the way. Don't! Have the courage to conquer your mind.
It can be done. I have done so.
I think everyone can if they try and really want to.

Live long and prosper,
but never be complacent.
You can change things!
You must find by yourself,
within yourself, the strength
to stand alone and do so.
Always remember though,
you have friends around you
to catch you if you fall.

Slime: I have trouble understanding you.
You seem to care, yet I think that you are letting Murphy ruin/run your life. Things can always go right, and they often do. It never hurts to ask a stranger for help,
you might make a new friend.

Live long and prosper.
And remember! If anything can go right, it probably will.

The optimist gets hurt,
but he plans ~~picnics~~ picnics.
The pessimist never gets hurt,
but he never plans picnics.

I like picnics,
so I plan them, even though
they might get rained upon.
I've gotten wet, but I've had fun picnics!

Tom: You try, you really do. Some time, trying isn't enough. Don't let
a material object get you down.
There are enough depressing things in the world without worrying about objects. I know it hurts,
but you can always fix a broken truck.
Broken relationships can rarely be fixed.
Don't let relationships get broken.
There are few enough around without losing the ones you have.

Live long and prosper,
and don't let the world get you down...

Danny: I have begun to feel a close kinship
to you, perhaps because of Amanda.
You are a good person. I am seeing a side of you that I didn't see at first. You have changed since I first met you, or at least the way I view you has changed.
You can see some of the good things in life, pursue them.

Live long and prosper,
and make the most of every relationship.

Rusty: You are a good person. You really seem to enjoy life.
I envy you at times. Just remember that although fantasy is not reality, it's still fun.
This world holds many things that are also fun. Sample everything.
One can have fun in this world too!
Live long and prosper. Enjoy life because it can be enjoyed.
Have Fun!

John F: Live long and prosper friend.
What Else can I say to you?

Marc: You are right about many things.
People who care are easily hurt.
That is a risk to be taken. There is so much to be gained by caring.
You are a good person. Though your life may not be always lucky, luck has a habit of changing at the strangest times. Even unlucky people can still have fun. You learn to take the good with the bad. "It builds character."

Live long and prosper
and may luck smile upon you,
wherever you go and whatever you do. Sometimes you can even make your own luck!

To all who I have not written to:
I'm sorry I didn't get to know you better, and if I did I'm sorry that I didn't have time
and energy to include you.

Something I would like all to know:

I CARE

Everyone has something to offer. (✓)

May everyone find happiness.

Love solves more problems than hate does.

You must learn to <sup>understand</sup> <sup>love</sup> <sup>respect</sup> yourself before you can <sup>understand</sup> <sup>love</sup> <sup>respect</sup> others.

In closing, I'd just like to say:

The Science Fiction Forum
has people in it who care!
It is a good place.

I thank everyone.

I've grown much over this Semester, and I still have much to learn and do.

May I find friends like the ones I have here everywhere I go.

It's easier to handle the world
when you know someone cares.

What else can I say?

I love you all!!!

I even love Shog Brook. (How else would I have met the forum?)

Most of all, I'm learning
to love myself.

I hope everyone can say the same.

Fare well. I have many long lovely roads yet to travel, and thoughts of this place and the people I met here shall always comfort me.

Paul Fenhout

To all - I thank you for making a lonely, depressing year bearable. This is the first time I've ever been alone and I discovered it wasn't all it's cracked up to be. I now understand why people commit suicide though I ~~type~~ have overcome the urge. With your kind and sometimes not-so-kind support I am alive and well today rather than dead by my own hand or lying in some padded cell.

K'iss & your friendship means a great deal to me.

I am sorry that I nearly ruined it by pushing for something which was not to be. My offers for all other things (eg visits, readings, etc.)

still stands. I know very well what it is you are going through, though to a far lesser degree I will admit. I guess I'm trying to understand you and myself; I hope we have the chance to do this. Please, don't feel any pressure from me - I express myself poorly. In other words I only open my mouth to change feet. Please read between the lines and as understand that I care very deeply tho' I have no experience in its expression. I still have lots of growing up to do. I know you will be patient with me.

Jim, you were the first to befriend me here so why the sudden cold shoulder? It's not like you to snub anyone.

Therese: They'll overtake you away w/ an honor guard!
The men in the white jackets and butterfly nets have my deepest sympathy as do their widows if they ever <sup>come</sup> after you!

You both deserve KUDOS

I'm now a senior!

Paul: It's refreshing to see someone as pure as you. Unfortunately, I don't think you've experienced all that life has to offer yet. You will find many disappointments. Hold to your values as long as possible, they're worth the effort. Good luck and love to all in Lakeland. Don't be afraid of taking some of life's sins.

I'll be in Kelly Court this summer. I don't know where yet. Hang in there Lisa!

Shirley I can get a student loan and get much money, I will not be here next semester. Kington High Command has decreed that I go elsewhere and switch majors. Unless I can pay for it myself, I either go where they want or stop going to classes other than night school. (To be continued)

All - Well, this is it. Finals are finally

Ezed - I didn't mean to be so flip. You are, however, in no position to cast aspersions on the maturity level of any forum member. You have a lot of growing up to do yourself. I will admit that you're at least trying and are making some progress, but you are not there yet.
Will - Are you finished reading Kuba yet? You promised to lend it to me, remember? Why is it that I seem to keep missing you everytime you come down here.

Kurt I will be here all summer also. (Maybe in really also)

(BEFORE THE END OF NEXT WEEK)

5/13/81 (continued from 4 pages back) So, it looks like since this may be it, I may never see Story Brook or the Forum again (although I'd doubtless catch you at cons here and there). So, accordingly, I'll leave a few messages to all of you, or at least most.

Pericaine: Well, you've finally made Forum President. I hope you enjoy your final semester and enjoy your last ~~at~~ days at the Forum. My last few days here have been great. Since you only live about 5 miles away, I hope I can see you over the summer. I could say more but I'd probably bore you. So I'll cut off with a simple "good-bye".

Marc: Well, another one leaves the Brook. We've had our differences in the past, but I think we can say we parted friends.

Dana: I suppose I've occasionally been cruel to you but, what the hell, that's the way I am. See you at the rare events I go to.

Margaret: As one of the people in the forum I've communicated most with, I don't really know where to start. I could start with Barack trying to eat me, or drinking Guinness in your room at 5:30 in the morning, or T&T. I guess these are all irrelevant and so I'll address this to you as a person. Somewhere, deep down, ~~like the~~ ~~like the~~ ~~like the~~ ~~like the~~ you really care about people. I hope I'm right. At the very least I know that you will think I'm being ridiculous (because I am) but, what the hell, I will see you over the summer, of that, at least I'm sure. Enjoy.

Greg: What can I say. I remember that I mean nothing. God, if he/she/it (check one) exists (which he/she/it ~~check one~~ doesn't), he/she/it (check one) doesn't care.

Ferret: I'll probably never see you again. Since I don't know you (but will come you rarely speak) I'll be dumb. I don't let Murphy run my life, I just live with him.

Ben 9000: I have little to say except that you're a good friend and a lovely job partner. Call me, you monster.

Fred: Why am I writing to you? You're already left.

Georgie: Again, what can I say. I'll see you at Waterloo.

~~See~~ Feo's "c": See bottom of preceeding page Jeff and Lisa: It's all been such I will see you.

Meryl: I will see you. I'm not quite sure what else to say.

John: I'll give you a call.

Well all, I guess this may be my last entry. Thank you all for a wonderful year.
I love you all. Shw

Where is everyone?

Day 9000

another person (you unintentional). Since people often are very far apart in this world, this is a good thing. A very good thing. It lets people care about each other.

TO THINK SEX IS ONLY FOR REPRODUCTION IS

SICK

not to mention BORING and WRONG.

Sex is FUN!! Sex is Nice!! Sex is one of the highest reasons for people to live at all.

By the way, Freud (E. H. Freud) called "Love" a "fixated libido". What this means is what you feel as
"love" is actually your sexual urge begging and pleading for expression.
Without sex, man is a

ROCK.

Charlie: I refuse to read your sickening entries.

Mary: Thank you for saving my life so many times this semester, although you might not have realized it.

Nancy: I am FINE. I wasn't shot.

Pope #4

Pope: I wasn't planning on writing
any more entries but I felt that I must reply now.

1. People are very far apart, and sex is often the only way to get you a bit closer. It

15. What you make of it, I just find it sad when you can't express love and friendship
to a person without making them
think you want to have sex with them!
Can't people just be friends?
Can't people lie by each other
and not lie with each other?
~~They lie to each other.~~

2. I never said sex was only for reproduction, but if that was how what I said was interpreted I'm sorry for not making my stand clearer.

Sex can be a very beautiful, interesting and fun thing. I have no qualms about having sex just for fun or pleasure. It is just that often sex "cheapens" relationships. It complicates things.
Sex just for pleasure can lead to people viewing their sex partners as just "bunks of flesh". Sex for fun is O.K. but only as long as both people in the relationship want it only for that. Unfortunately,
human relationships aren't as simple as that, and quite often one person begins to see more in the relationship than mutual sexual gratification. And that is when someone is set up to get hurt...

Sex means what you want it to mean. If all the people and don't get a good relationship. Free things between people are great. But that doesn't always happen.

It is a <sup>Beautiful experience</sup> ~~great~~ experience to sleep next to someone else. To listen to their heart beat, listen to their breath, run your fingers through their hair, and know that you are not alone in the world. I do not wish to deprive anyone of that. I do not wish to deprive myself of that. But that closeness, that intimacy does not require sex. Sex can heighten that experience, and sex can also destroy it. I took the stand I did because I do not wish myself or ones I love to be hurt, and sexual relationships can often end up that way. They don't have to, but they can. I just want to make sure that people understand each other and what they want in a relationship.

Sex for fun is great,
but sex for love is greater.

I find it hard to express exactly what I mean, but I am trying my hardest...

Paul Simon

Perret: "It is better to have love and lost,
than not to have loved at all."

P.S. I quote you: <sup>Pope.</sup> I plan to have children and raise them to be people.

Sex to me is a way of starting that process. This made me feel you thought of sex as solely reproductive. You go on to say you want a woman who thinks the same way, i.e., either a virgin or a woman who does not enjoy sex. Hence, my statement, "Sick, daring, and wrong." My church's position is this: life life to its fullest. Sex is part of it.

Forest

Actually, what I want by a woman who has a life like I do is one who cares and who would wish to work with me to raise our children to be the best people they could be. Also, I want someone I can be silly with and can throw snowballs at and who will throw them back, and in general, a playmate and partner.

What else could one ask for?

Paul Farnhout

For all you followers who are sitting there, having read my entries and are saying "he must be going crazy" I say this to you: I'm finally going sane. You have not seen me, the real Paul Farnhout. Very few people here know who I really am, if any at all. What do you know of my past or my potential? I do not even know all about them. This entire semester has been a time of crisis for me, a trying time. I hope for the better.

Though, the more I think about it,
the more I think I am just putting into practice ideas I always had. (Came out...)

I hope you're happy!!! God bless you all!

It comes to an end at last! It is difficult to believe that I have been here for four years, come and gone. I've seen the forum go from an organization worried about dying out as the members graduate, where a shift could be compared to a sensory deprivation experiment for a large group with a lot of energy. I have seen our men shift and have seen people come and go. Of the people that were here when I started only Fred and Jim still remain. The character of the forum has indeed changed, there are more people and more personal conflicts within the group. The people I have come to know here I consider the best friends I have ever had. So I would like to offer a little advice on how to keep it all together.

What I have done here, what I consider to be the best policy is to be yourself and accept other people as they are. Sure they aren't perfect, they certainly don't meet your standards of perfection, but they themselves are the ones most hurt by any imperfections. Science fiction has always been a method for me to strive to ~~reach~~ reach the goal of cosmic perspective. This means transcending the subjectivity of the circumstances life has handed me by examining and trying to come to understand the perspective of ~~these~~ as many of those who live by different circumstances as much as possible. This policy of walking miles in the other person's shoes before judging them I believe has made me a more tolerant person. I also try never to lock a person into the stereotype of the behavior and personality that they had yesterday.

Being mellow about others makes life much easier since you don't have to worry about something beyond your control, another human being. I suppose I am laying it on a bit thick. It is just that I love this group so much individually and collectively that it hurts me when two or more of the people I consider my closest friends consider each other enemies. My advice is offered free and you may take it as worth as much but I ask you to consider ~~it~~ it, it might help. Many of you I will continue to see on weekends and certainly in conventions, giving me all the more reason to anticipate happily the coming of those fustiest of time periods. I suppose I have gotten a bit wordy, this is certainly one of the longest of my rather infrequent entries, but what the hell, I'm a graduating senior - I'm entitled.

At this point I would like to write individually addressed entries to all those who have made my stay here that much more enjoyable by their presence here, then would otherwise have been the case but I do not trust my memory, I'm sure I would leave someone out that I shouldn't. Also some of the people to whom I would write are no longer around to read this entry. So instead I will thank all those who have wished me well in life's continuing journey and say that I wish the best for all here you do me it. Oh yes, it figures the year
I leave you as treasurer would be the year we get the bloody line budget from polity! At any rate ~~any~~ good bye to you all

All: If I was making a movie about my semester here at Stony Brook, at the end, after the credits rolled, I would have a fade-out on a stuffed jack ass.

"Thank you" is such a nice phrase, and sometimes it makes a lot of effort worth while. I love to hear those two words when I do something for some one, and I'm sure everyone else does too. So I say:

"Thank You"

As an expert on the subject I think I should comment on the sex discussion:

① Sex can be used merely as a means of reproduction, (but it's hard)

② Sex can be used as a way of getting to know someone.

③ Sex can be used as a means of strengthening a good relationship.

④ Sex can be used to hurt people.

⑤ Sex can be used to let someone know you love them (especially after a fight)

① Sex can be used to relieve tension; generally when one is alone i.e; masturbation.

② Sex can be great recreation.

③ Sex can be a hobby.

④ Sex can be a legal process; i.e. consummating a marriage.

⑤ Sex can be tender.

⑥ Sex can be a fantasy.

⑦ Sex is generally - and should be, good & clear fun.

It's up to each person to decide what they want to do with sex. I can't tell anyone what to do however:

I would suggest that it not be used to hurt people. One can have fun and even go to ~~to~~ bed with a stranger as long as there's an understanding that no one is going to fall in love with the other (unless it's mutual). Never mislead someone. It can really cause unintentional hurt.

And yes, I agree that a sunrise can be a great substitute for sex. Taken from experience:

I was having sex with someone regularly, but we never became close until we watched a sunrise together.

I'd love to continue but I'm being rushed.

Love,

This year has gone by so quickly. Hard to believe my Sophomore year is over. Seems like such a short time ago that I came to Stony Brook and joined the Forum. I have gained <sup>some</sup> friends
I consider a second family.
My plans for the summer:

1) work: This has not yet materialized, but I'm still hoping...

2) Gaming/Role Playing:
I will be out at Waterloo on occasion and I will be running C&S at my public library (for $5 not much though). With luck and some persistence I should finish
a C&S scenario pack by September.

3) Party: I hope to have some kind of get-together in late July. I will send invitations when I know specifics.

4) Cons: OF SLAVE, Empiricon, possibly world con.

This is an entry to all new Forum Freshman:

You are about to embark on a career as a Freshman (person) at SB
and a member of the Forum

STOP!

Decide Now! What are your priorities?
are you a college student first or
a forum member?

If your answer is college student Then be careful not to let this place monopolize your time. It is impossible to study down here. There are other people in the world besides forum people.
This can be a nice place; but it can also be a soul-sucking one.

A tradition has developed over the past two years of Forum Freshman Failing out. This is not due (in all cases) to lack of intelligence. It is more a case of not getting priorities straight.
Also it has not always been thus.
There has, in the past, been a tradition of academic excellence, and general achievement, witness Jim Frenkel.

End this new tradition, and Shot of will

bring back the old ones.

These next four years (or five) can be good productive ones. They can be fun ones both in the Forum and out. But consider If you do not maintain academic standing you will be thrown out. At the very least this means you will have that much less time in the Forum. You will also start your first attempt at being on your own with a Failure. Take care!

To those who choose the second path, and are Forum members before students: you are lost; I have nothing to say to you.

6/15 Xurt: Depending on test scheduling (if the date changes).
Robin I will be able to help you on all of the indicated date. You will have to tell me where the meeting will be held. Howard might (?) help too. (I'll put him on his best behaviour so the incoming freshmen won't get scared of him).

Deadly Warning

I heard a sound . . . a light, sighing, quivering breath of sound . . . like someone crying.

I peered through sheltering trees and saw a figure kneeling on the ground. I walked quickly toward it and stood at last beside an old woman whose faded blue eyes were diffused with tears.

"Mrs. Wadley?" I said.

She looked slowly up at me, and her eyes were filled not only with tears, but with shock and horror. Her hands were threaded through the coat of a dog. A dead dog.

And then the woman spoke. "And now Pado's dead too," she said.

"I'm terribly sorry. Was he very old?"

All - The first meeting of the Forum will be on 14 September at 10 PM. right here in the library. We will be assigning library shifts and holding nominations for Head Librarian, Secretary, and Activities Coordinator, so try to attend. And now, the moment you're all been waiting for:

"How I Spent My Summer Vacation" by Perianne Lurie

I spent my summer vacation working part-time as a cashier at Pergament. They didn't pay me much and they didn't give me enough hours. The salespeople never mark down their sale items and the customers are not very patient.

When I wasn't working I filled out eight medical school applications to seventeen schools which I mailed last Tuesday. I also started to write a vampire story which I may finish someday. I wrote a new folksong.

I saw a few movies with Jeff, Lisa, and others: Superman II, Escape From New York, Heavy Metal. We also went out to a local diner, an Italian restaurant, and Friendly's.

Early in the summer I visited Lisa in the hospital (and in Brooklyn). Nancy and I went into Mineola to Waterloo II to visit Rusty. I went to a graduation party for my high school class valedictorian who graduated (in three years) from Princeton and is now in medical school.

So, don't ask me how my summer was!!

I am now living in C22B in this building. I don't have a phone yet, but should get one eventually.
Until then, stop by and say "hi"
(but not too late at night; I won't answer the door.)

This entry is getting far too long, so I'll sign off now.

FALLFEST

Club Fair Sept. 12, 13

An Open Invitation to all Campus Clubs

to participate in Fallfest's Club Arts & Crafts Fair. This will provide your club with terrific recruitment opportunities for new members, and to let the Stony Brook students know what organizations are available on campus.

Space will be allotted for your club by Polity, and there is no charge, unless your club plans to sell merchandise or food of any type. If this is the case, a fee of $15 will be charged for the weekend.

If your organization wishes to still have its table at dusk, you must supply your own lighting.

If you are interested in having your club represented, contact Polity at 246-3673, before Friday, September 11.

if you prefer a real name, I will try to oblige you. This will take some getting used to, though.

Maryl - Did you find Dave?

Dave - Did you find Maryl?

Jim - Did you find Judge C.?

Dorothy - I was in my room, you fool. Where else would a sane person be at three in the morning, if you decide to play C.E. at a reasonable hour, let me know. Also, if you want the posters, come and get them yourself! You know where I live and if I'm not there I'm probably here (unless of course, I'm somewhere else).

Al - Yesterday morning there was supposed to be a bagel breakfast in RA Cafeteria. I went over there, hungry for free food and found - ABSOLUTELY NOTHING. (Except a Cardozo RA who told his entire hall about it and was beginning to fear for his life). It was a shattering experience; I had to buy food at the Union Cafeteria ("the Edorium", now). UGH!

George hasn't died! He is alive and well and sleeping in the Forum.

Chapter One

I learned that I was an heiress on the thirtieth of April. It was Saturday, a true spring day, the sky baby blue with puffy white clouds, and the temperature in the high sixties. I could scarcely wait to get dressed and go out, because the winter had been hard and package in my handbag . . . some cheese I had bought at a neighborhood shop, cheddar with pistachio nuts . . . it was a treat for my mother and father. I was in the best of moods: spring always does that to me, with its promise of summer ahead, the beach, coming vacation, sunny skies. I was humming as I put the key in my mailbox.

It was stuffed. There was a circular from a department store where I had a charge, a communication from my Congressman, and two letters. There was something else too, a stiff, bulky envelope which, when I eased it out, bore foreign stamps and the printed words VIA AERIA. I thought there must be some mistake, that what I held in my hands had been meant for someone else's box and had, inadvertently, been put into mine.

But there was no mistake. It was addressed to me, Miss Barbara Loomis, neatly typed on an electric. I

But as of yet I'm not dead yet; Perhaps
I will be in sleep....
Oh well, (again) I don't like my name,
Darryl ~~spot~~ wrong so....
I am Yahoo and I shall respond to such; good Night.

9/4/81 Howard: I've had a flat on the L.E. (the world's longest parking lot), blocking up traffic for close to an hour, making dozens of people late for where ever they were going. It can be fun, if you look at it right, until the cops show up. P.S. I had a flat spare.
Meryl (aka "strangler"): Oil awaits. Mids you.

1:32 05 Once again, this is GARY. I just made my second fly-by and near encounter of the forum. Everything went fine but my neck got jammed when I passed through the magnetosphere. The cosmic rays were hell on my tan too. In addition, somebody stuffed a recording stick in my left ear

*WARNING* Long boring entry*WARNING*

Tuesday

Well, this is something I haven't for a while, writing a long, boring, pointless entry which only a mentally ill person would read, being highly amazed by the fact that someone WILL read this (you schmuck), wonder why I'm doing this, and maybe even get upset by
it, realizing that this sentence has run on now for eight lines, not particularly interestingly either, but hey, this is FREE,
I mean, you're not paying to read this,
so what do you expect anyways. Well, that was close, I almost ran out of breath (oo! to mention ink) in that last sentence, but what really amuses me is knowing that ~~reader~~ (DOPS) since this entry changes colors, someone will think I must say something just FASCINATING, and hence, I am gratified

you that in America, folks, ONLY IN AMERICA, can some one talk in circles
for perhaps a page, two pages, who knows, maybe the rest of the COG, talk about writing, write about talking, write a book writing, and like that, knowing that SOME POOR JERK is reading it.

9-9 4:30 P.M. all - My first day of classes was interesting. Of my two scheduled classes, the first was 3:10-101 (which I TA'd) at 8:10 is the ~~morning~~ which went off without a hitch. The second was existentialism.
Our instructor, Dr. Allison, did not show up. After fifteen minutes of staring into space, Lisa and I decided to determine the philosophy department.
We were accompanied by a gungy brave named David who had the misfortune to have another class with Dr. Allison immediately following ours. The department secretary could not locate the professor and decided that he had gone out to lunch with Dr. Wade,
the protochile department chairman.
He hadn't. On our way out, we met our professor in the hallowed halls of Old Physics. He had been in the lab.

beam repeating - I HAVE A TELEPHONE! It can receive calls and will be able to send them by Thursday. My number is 246-4102.

Jay - Welcome.

Steve - Look 'em in the weight room, all together...

After I took long walks alone at night, I knew. Ludicrous as the first sentence may sound, there is a pointed air of sense to it if one probes deeply enough. I have thought of my nightly tours as a chance to ponder out those facets in my enigmatic existence which are destined to affect others. These were the walks which brought me to this place, to this forum where I may speak freely and not worry about a single word of my talk being taken for granted. (Although not a single word is believed, either.) But you see, my function would not be as easy as it shall for man's lack of belief.

could manage very well. They knew that, per se and mere, and respected me for it, but they would—and in subtle ways made it clear—have preferred their only child to remain at home until the finality of the marriage vows. I was not at all resentful, but rather tender and understanding. One day I too would know the wrench of parting from a child of my own, and there was no real generation gap in our little family. We coexisted.

I picked up a tulip and smelt it. It was a glorious scarlet, tight and unopened, with velvety petals. "Darling, don't bruise it," my mother said and I put a hand on her shoulder. "Listen," I said. "I've inherited some money."

"Oh?"

I suppose she thought I'd had a refund on my income taxes. She smiled and added, "Isn't that nice, dear?"

Antonio Predelli. And then I read the letter, after which I sat down on one of the stone steps leading to the street and read it again . . . and yet again.

At last I folded it, shoved it back into the crackly envelope, thrust it into my handbag and trotted over to the parental flat on East 81 Street, marveling . . . and wondering. Fred, the doorman, greeted me with some remark about the wonderful weather, told me I was looking perky and when I reached the eleventh floor and rang the bell, Millie let me in with a smile and her usual little peck on my cheek. There was the smell of coffee and bacon crisping. "I hope you brought your appetite with you," Millie said, as she always did, and in the big, cheerful living room my father was reading The Times, looking through his bifocals. He looked up and waved abstractedly, murmuring something. Mother was arranging flowers—tulips, fern and baby's breath in a crystal vase.

Having yesterday returned for a visit I ran CTS briefly last night. The players were silly. Too silly so I cut the adventure short. Early CTS isn't normally like that. That is when Rusty, Bap, or I run. I think at least one twist at Waterloo runs CTS quite poorly and stupidly.

Now for some recommendations for the Forum:

It has been demonstrated that the Forum has no access to facilities for a Con at this time. Two things we cause a club to make a mark
as a club in fandom - cons and zines.
Zines can be either APA's (amateur press associations) or fanzines. Membership Individual forumites & belonging to other clubs
APA's does nothing for the club
Forum. Start a Forum Fanzine
Start it soon!

Step 1 is to get someone to be

Step 2 is for members to contribute Perrienne can put in some of her
