Hex Hex Rules - All rules are ignored for game necessary actions.

1. WHEN A PLAYER PLAYS A STANDING EFFECT THEY LOSE A VOICE. THE PLAYER MAY CHOOSE TO DISCARD ANY STANDING EFFECT CARDS IMMEDIATELY WHEN DEALT AND DRAW ONE CARD FOR EACH DISCARDED IN THIS WAY.

2. ~~ANYONE WHO SPEAKS WORDS BEGINNING WITH 'a' LOSES ONE VOICE.~~ CHANGED BY RULE 4.

3. WHEN A PLAYER PASSES THE HEX TO A PLAYER ACROSS (EVEN WITH A CARD CHOICE) THE TABLE, THEY MUST SAY "HERE, HAVE A SHOVEL", OR SOME SUCH OR DISCARD A CARD.

4. CHANGES RULE 2 SO INSTEAD IT READS "ANYONE WHO SPEAKS THE NAME OF A PLAYER LOSES ONE VOICE."

5. A PLAYER WHO SPEAKS MORE WORDS IN A SENTENCE THAN VOICE THEY HAVE (MINIMUM 0) LOSES ONE VOICE.

6. WHEN A CARD SAYS TO PASS THE HEX RIGHT, PASS IT LEFT, AND VICE VERSA. PENALTY OF ONE VOICE.

7. NULL CARDS DO NOT WORK UNLESS THE PLAYER SAYS "HOWIE SAYS 'NO'."

Hex

8. PLAYERS MUST THANK THE PLAYER WHO PASSES THEM A HEX.

IF THEY DON'T, THEY LOSE ONE VOICE. ^{RESPONSE} WAIT UNTIL AFTER CARD IS PLAYED TO CHECK.

9. WHEN PLAYING THE HEX CARD, THE PLAYER MUST ANNOUNCE "BAT BAT" INSTEAD OF "HEX HEX". IF THEY FAIL TO DO SO MEANS THAT PLAYER IS THE AUTOMATIC LOSER.

10. WHENEVER A PLAYER GAINS VOICE, THEY MUST PLACE THE STONE DOWN AS A GO STONE IN HIKARI NO GO OR THEY DON'T GET THE VOICE.

11. WHEN STARTING A ROUND, EACH PLAYER GETS 6 CARDS AND CHOOSES A CARD TO DISCARD.

12. WHENEVER A PLAYER DUPLICATES THE HEX THEY MUST SAY "OR EQUIVALENT" "I'M BATMAN" OR THE CARD IS CANCELLED. ONLY BATMAN CAN DUPLICATE THE HEX.

13. WHENEVER YOU PASS THE HEX, YOU MUST ALSO SAY A SEXY PICK-UP-LINE TO THAT PERSON. PENALTY: 1 VOICE.

My first log entry in years to go with my first visit to the forum since I helped with the move. The place looks pretty good. So does the paint job, especially the excellent job on the door. Festus party went well as did the Star Wars Holiday Special. The place seems decent as usual even though I don't know any of the new people. Ah well.

Forumites –

It is sometimes the tradition for a forumite to leave a goodbye in Log even if they are only leaving for a break. Of course, many who graduate follow one of the other two forum traditions of either disappearing without a trace one day and leaving people to wonder or never leaving at all and serving the forum in perpetuity. As I was the 4M's Gandalf for a long time (gone before you notice and expected when seen), I thought I'd probably simply be gone and let it go at that. Still, I've ended up with more positions of responsibility than I thought I would when I left Harriman, so I think I owe it to the Forum to do this at least.

The Forum may not have been as important to me as it has been to many. I am not nearly as social as most forumites (a scary thought given some forumites), so the need to belong was not as great as to make me stay all day. I'm sure that there are many forumites who have never even seen me. Over the years, I've come less and less to the forum, though my time in the lounge is about the same as always. I have always served the library first since that was the main need the forum filled for me. I don't know half of you and that's fine with me and I like less than half of the people I do know and I'm sure that's fine with them. My list in the circulations is likely longer than anyone's and would be about twice as long except for the fact that the Forum lacks many of the books I've wanted to read over the years. Blame Lukas. He never had the book request sheet out. If you're curious as to the books that would be on the lists if they'd been around, try the request forms from Vince and Mitch's time as librarian. That should do for most of them.

As a transplant from Harriman (and the second-to-last of that vintage to graduate), this room has always seemed a bit of a dark closet to keep the books until a real space can be found. Get ready, President Matt. Unless you can pass the potato with great alacrity, the move is coming for you. Take heart. I remember a president unfortunate enough to have a move and the 40th anniversary in the same semester. At least the 50th will be after you graduate. Hell, that's probably the next time you'll see me on this campus. By the way, it amuses me that at some point, forumites began referring to me as 'Best Paul' given how many people of that name have been forumites in the last five years.

One day I shall come back/Expect me when you see me/ Always read the fine print and beware of cheap imitations, the U.S. military as the originator of the "chemicals." From there, if we watch the progression of how the military is portrayed we get a sense of the commentary the film is trying to make.

The survivors play an important role in the movie. In Return, the characters are comical, setting up a light-hearted approach to the mood.

The characterization of zombies are obviously different, too. If we pay attention to the reason they hunger, the "pain of being dead" we get another sense of the theme of the film. Existing in a tradition of Zombies as a ~~tradition~~ <sup>example</sup> of the mindless mob - of people, then this quote shows us an existential quality to the film. The fact that the Zombies are smart dissociates them from that tradition at the same time.

Thesis: Good Burger is the pinnacle of modern cinema and all film after it is shit.

Good Burger is a True work of art that descended from the heavens on July 25th, 1997, bringing an age of enlightenment with it that lasted exactly 7 months, 9 days, 3 hours, 27 minutes, and 4 seconds. The vision of this master piece was perceived by the prophet Dan Schneider, who received the vision one day while at the drive through.

Our story begins with a look into the mind of Ed, Local burger jockey and potentially escaped circus freak show attraction. In this scene we see Ed preparing burgers. Unfortunately the health inspector has clearly died because as we see, the burgers have not only gained sentience, but have ascended to a higher plane of understanding and levitate Ed out of the world of mortal men.

Fortunately the burger uprising has not started and Ed wakes up ready to start his day. In this opening credits sequence we see Ed rush to work while simultaneously at Good Burger chaos and anarchy run rampant without Ed. Ed's journey to work however is filled with dangerous perils. Fortunately for the audience, Ed is a master of not giving a fuck and proceeds to rock.

Ed eventually gets to work, having only given a girl concussive brain damage, stolen a baby, and finally slam dunked the baby proving that the phrase 'nothing but net' could only have originated after the release of this film. Once Ed gets to Good Burger he gives the customer his order. Unfortunately Ed is slightly smarter than a brain damaged recess monkey and fails not only the customer, but the audience who was invested in this quest.

The angry customer, who also represents the viewer, tells Ed that he will soon get food from Mondo Burger, a clear metaphor for Satan. This angers Ed's boss, played by the great prophet Dan, who warn Ed to stop goofing around.

We now cut to our other protagonist Dexter who is currently in school. Dexter is being lectured by Sinbad, who from the looks of it was comprised of every black stereotype they could fit into a PG film. Sinbad tells his student something about hard work or something, and just then the bell rings signifying summer vacation. Dexter now relieved of the burden of the public school system decides to do the logical thing and take his mother's car and drive it, probably to Mondo Burger.

Meanwhile at Good Burger, DEFCON 3 is declared as the delivery guy is out, most likely giving his life in the fight for freedom and a side of fries. Da boss assigns Ed on the mission of delivering the food, Ed gets moving. Just then what can only be called divine intervention happens because Ed accidentally gets in the way of Dexter, causing him to hit Sinbad's car.

Sinbad, being Sinbad make Dexter pay for the damages done to his car. This can only mean one thing: Dexter must get a job to fix Sinbad's car. It soon becomes clear though that this is only a set up in order to bring the larger picture into focus.

It is at this point we are introduced to Mondo Burger and its leader, Kurt. The film is very liberal with Kurt but at this point I would like to take a moment to analysis what may be the most interesting antagonist in cinema history. Kurt is the head of Mondo Burger and from the looks of it, it has driven him mad. Kurt is almost never seen without his shiny, what I assume to be nylon, suit on. Not only has that, but he also always referres to himself in the third person. This has led me to believe that Kurt was once a normal guy, until he tried on the suit and with that its material blocked his sweat glands, making him mad, mad with the sole goal of making Mondo Burger number one.

During this point in the movie Dexter is trying to get a job at Mondo Burger. Fortunately for Dexter, Kurt in a fit of madness banishes him from Mondo Burger, with a threat of putting him in "The Grinder". Down on his luck, Dexter decides to eat at Good Burger in the hopes that his arteries will clog and the sweet embrace of death will relieve his pain. Fortunately, Ed comes by and offers him a job. Dexter, honestly not caring any more, decides "why not" and accepts. It is at this point we are introduced to the Good Crew as they are called by me, and now you. They consist of Otis: in charge of fries and most likely a veteran of every American war. Monique: Dexter's future love interest, in charge of being the girl. Spatch: Head fry cook and Hodor's descendent. Fizz in charge of drive through and giving you nostalgia about All-That. Deedee: a vegetarian who is most likely working to overthrow the meat business from the inside out. Burger.

Together this team of minimum wage goons can take on anything. For a while all is good, until Kurt comes in, deranged and clearly ready to kill. He tells the Good Crew that Mondo Burger is about to open, and that the only one who is ever going to eat there again are the harpies that will consume their failure flesh, with a medium Good Shake. The Good Crew, decides the best course of action is to sit around like a bunch of morons and do nothing to get more business because money is for losers. Kurt is therefore a loser.

Later that night the grand opening of Mondo Burger is in full swing. I would also like to note that, aside from the band they got to play, the people attending this grand opening are all in full dress attire. This, I think, is one of the films many satires of the modern world of 1997. This scene shows that not only are people willing to make anything a big event, but that some fancy schmancy rich said "Oh Martha let us go to that Mondo Burger place, I've always wanted to eat like the peasant folk". The Good Crew, defeated by this show of Burger sorcery, decide to close up shop early, because customer loyalty is a myth and all that obstructs Mondo Burger and its path of destruction will end up in "The Grinder".

We are now treated to a montage of cinematic gold that shows us how much Good Burger is failing, and how much Mondo Burger is thriving, with Kurt most likely rubbing money on his body. Most likely in an attempt to become one with Scrooge McDuck. There is also a song that reminds us that in fact, I have one opposable thumb. It is also shown at this time that a Mondo Burger burger is much larger than a normal burger, so much so that Deedee's rebellion has just been pushed up a week. Meanwhile, Dexter, once again providing the moral that yes, your life CAN get worse, sits down to lunch Ed then joins him, giving us one the best displays of cinematic performance ever. Going "bloopity bloopity bloopity bloopity" until Dexter finally agrees to let him sit down. Proving that Ed is a master negotiator.

It is now introduced that Ed has created a secret sauce. Ed then accidentally gets some secret sauce on Dexter, much to his surprise though, the sauce is good. Showing this to the Good Crew they realize that they can now be back in business selling Eds sauce.

Meanwhile tension rises between Ed and Dexter as Dexter figures out that it was Ed who made him total his mother's car. This drives a fork in their relationship, making way for the temptations of Mondo Burger to take hold. At Mondo Burger, Kurt is unhappy the fact that Good Burger is still in business and decides he must acquire Ed's sauce and put it in his burgers. Kurt also was going on about inventing neon. Kurt is crazy.

We are then treated to a montage of Good Burgers success and a song telling us that he's feelin' good, she's feelin' good, we're feelin' good, yeah. The boss then tells Ed that for every good burger they sell, Ed will get 10 cents. Dexter, having the temptation of Mondo Burger in his soul, cheats Ed out of most of his hard earned cash.

It is at this point that we are treated to some serious world building as we discover Dexter's parents split up and that his father gave him a really bitchin' yo-yo. This scene not only lets us peer into the souls of our protagonist, but also shows us that Ed has nine toes, further proving my escaped carney theory.

Kurt then tries to use his siren song of burgers and tries to convince Ed to join Mondo Burger. Ed, being boss, declines the offer saying that getting paid 10 BUCKS AN HOUR IN '97 is much better than enslavement in the Mondo Burger burger mines.

This displeases Kurt as the voices in his head demand that he acquire Ed, or else Mondo Burger will never be #1. Kurt then summons Roxanne, played by Carmen Electra, to seduce Ed and to get the sauce recipe. Roxanne then talks to Ed to get the formula out of him. Fortunately, Ed is married to his work, and therefore is not wooed by this temptress. He does however agree to go on a double date with Dexter and Monique.

At the date Ed proves to us once again how much of a suave mudderfager he is by giving Roxanne not one, but two concussions. Roxanne then reports to Kurt that Ed is unstoppable and that not even larger portion sizes will stop the madness. Kurt displease with this, throws her in "The Grinder" ensuring that no one will ever know of his failure.

Ed meanwhile, has bought Dexter a replacement yo-yo using the money he earned form sauce production. The two then make the discovery that while a dog would eat a Good burger, it would not eat a Mondo burger, this concerns the two as dog will eat anything. The two then go undercover disguised as Madea in order to sneak into Mondo Burger. It is here we discover that the company is using science to make their burgers bigger, and that eventually Mondo Burger will own the world.

Kurt is made aware of this intrusion and throws them into his old home, the local mental asylum. Ensuring the success of Mondo Burger along the way Kurt also sabotages the sauce at Good Burger, bringing to question why they didn't just steal a jar full and run an analysis of the ingredients.

Unfortunately for them, no one told Otis that the store was closed, so he catches them poring the poison in the sauce. Kurt, having finally lost his mind, throws him in the asylum as well, and then proceeds to strip naked and attempt to eat a wall.

Otis tells Ed and Dexter that the sauce is poisoned and that if they don't get back to the store in time, they will all get fired for being tardy. Fortunately insane people are great at not only choreographed dance numbers, but helping people escape. The three then proceed to hijack an Ice Cream Truck to get back to work. A high speed chase follows in which much ice cream gives its life to be a part of cinema history.

The three make it back just in time securing the health of the customers, and their job security. Ed and Dexter decide that they must stop Mondo Burger once and for all. Dexter distracts Kurt while Ed pours all the Illegal Satan magic into the meat. Kurt catches them and just as he's about to end this, the now oversized meat destroys the restaurant and Kurt is then taken away by the Vegan Police, who were contacted by Deedee awhile back.

After that Dexter tells Ed that he is sorry he scammed him and that he can keep the money. Ed is just happy they're still friends. The movie then ends with the famous line that started the burger renaissance "Welcome to Good Burger, Home of the Good Burger may I take your order?"

Good Burger is not just a movie but a film that transcends the very boundaries of the heavens. This film not only saved the American film industry from the horror known only as "Baby's Day Out" but set the base work for all future film. When asked about a sequel the cast responded with a unified chant of "YOU ARE NOT WORTHY. NONE ARE YET WORTHY". Only time will tell if this masterpiece is ever truly vindicated for its impact on the world, but one thing is for certain: Hail Mondo Burger.

Battletoads 09/20/15

[12] Ben: This is the part of the game where you need cat-like reflexes but the cat is diabetic and mentally challenged.

[13] Ben: ~~Clanker~~ CLANKER'S CAVERN

Travis: WHY ARE THERE SPACE INVADERS???

James: Because you're white.

Lydia: I have the Glados voice pack, she tells me how much I suck!

Ben: I could do that for you Bo < Bfmm-!

WLS1

Ben: You know when I say 'skate or die'? This is what I mean. You skate. You die.

Travis: Repeat.

Ben: This game is masochism.

Ben: sorry games I'm having war flashbacks... TO RIGHT NOW!

Ben: Hi Layne welcome to the bucking hell that is my life.

Ben: Here's what you missed: we played ~~LANC~~
CLANKER, went ~~&~~ inside, mutant cats, SWAMP, CLOCK & tile noise,
YUMMIES

Ben: You know there are a generation of ~~therapy~~ cases
BDSM people who can just trace their origin next to Battletoads.

→ SNAKES!

Ben: No 80s kids are dead. Battletoads killed them in the war.

Ben: Mom, Dad why are you fighting?

Well son I found out your mother played Battletoad.

Ted: I feel for the poor souls who don't have this rewind feature.

Ben: That's called the complexionist, Ted.

Ben: It's called 'Buck you' the game

[Lvl 7]

Ben: NO! NOO!

DUNK-A-ROOS!

Ben: The year is 8. All the Dunk-arees have taken over.

The world is in chaos and all of the space invaders need to get A FUCKING JOB!

Ben: You see, James is turning me because he knows.

James: *evil laughter*

Ben: This is death, but with Toads. DARK TOADS DARK TOADS 2

Travis: Hey, whoever designed this now the lead-designer of hell.

Ben: If sex were like Battletoads the girl would die and then get rabies and then she's a ghost with AIDS.

Ben: Yo this is the story all about how the Fresh Prince of Bel Air got cancelled.

James: The buck is wrong with these people?

Ben: ARE THEY ALL NAMED BEN OR?!?!

Ben: Did they waterbend the placenta? (on the topic of waterbending marmograns)

→ ELEVATOR SHOOPDEWHOOP!

Travis: OH NO HE HAS TO BISTE THE MIGHTY DUCKS!

James: Get out of your cage, you hipster trash.

James: I am a fabulous human being crawl back in your asshole!

Ben: I'm sorry your bucking hole has shitty wifi. You just ate my cheetos and left.

Ben: It's like a greek tragedy and Cassandra was like "yo it's a trap" and no one believed her.

[LVL 9]

Travis: OH GOD NO!

Ted: It's a metal gear!

Travis: Now includes spike feature!

Ben: You touch the walls, you die. You touch the ceiling, you die. You die! You die! YOU DIE!

YOU DIE! YOU DIE!

Travis: *whimpers in fear*

Travis: Electro sperm. Electro sperm EVERYWHERE!

James: I got shot in the testicle, my tank's on fire and I still managed to kill every one of you.

Travis: OH GOD GUPPY NO! The snake that smiles back!

Ben: No life is a box of chocolates but the chocolates are Battletoads.

Travis: So shades of Battletoads.

Ben: Is this how periods work? They just show up?

Lydia: A- .... Yes:

Ben: Hey look it's a duck you think it's safe? NO!

Ted: Rubber ducky why?!

*ERNIE VOICE*

Ben: Gee Burt, why did we get Battletoads? ..... Burt?

*Burt voice* I'm filing a divorce, Ernie.

[Lvl 10]

RAT RACE

Ben: My <sup>muscles</sup> ~~muscles~~ are basically Battletoads and pain. Put that on a Hot Topic Tshirt and you'll sell all of about 8... and I would buy 4 of them.

→ aaaaand then HE DID THE GLITCH! 0

→ The immediate joy of beating Rat Race was replaced by the pain of the next level....

* Plays Mad world *

Micsarah: If you die in the game you die in real life

Ben: No if you die in the game, you die.

Lydia: Guys we have four fucking pages of this shit.

Jones: This is my betish *javel movements*

Lydia: How do you spell that?

Ben: WHY WON'T YOU LET ME SAVE?!

Ted: The game likes to see you suffer, Ben.

Ben: You see Rat Race is a representation of the current shot of the bourgeoisie.

Ben: congratulations you are the 5% (on the topic of James beating
Dark Souls)

Ben: Vegeta look, that turret exploded like our planet!
*sings stronger than you by Estelle*

Ben: and then they all died.

look like?

Ben: It would look like me PUNCHING YOU IN THE FACE!!!

Lydia: This is almost six pages of pure beautiful.

James: This is intermission right now because you keep getting murdered by this yellow ball of death.

Ben: *whispers under his breath* I hate life.

Ben: Okay so we've been here about how hows each more deadly than the last.

James: OH MY GOD IT'S THE DREAMCAST LOGO

Travis: NO!!

Ben: GOTTA GO FAST!!

James: Having sex is like jamming a needle into a balloon. One minute and then it's like BAM YOU'RE PREGNANT!

JOHN CENA!!

Mieserah: My face is numb from all the pain... and the sorrow.

PAGE SIX !!!!!!!

Ben: Bobby Newport couldn't beat BattleToads....

I can believe. I CAN BELIEVE!!

Ben: Tumbling about toads and numbness and about half-assed tamagotchis.

Lydia: I'm getting a lot of anxiety watching this.

James: Welcome to BattleToads.

Travis:

Travis: Imagine if you beat this you get an all expenses paid trip to heaven.

Ben: I should deserve to go to heaven if I beat this.

Ben: I'm ingrainning the muscle memory into my own bones...

Ben: It's a pizza cutter from hell.

Travis: The swirly thing is the pizza cut for revenge.

Ben: These turns have to be exact knife.

→ And the X-box wouldn't save his progress.

→ We left the game and came back to find that NONE of the progress before rat race was saved.

Ben: MOTHERFUCKER!!!

Travis: [Literally shitting his pants]

END: 09/20/15 at 8:52pm.

Dear Forumites,

I just wanted to leave a note on why I resigned. The first was that I didn't do a good job. I let the pieces of the move fall into my lap and I didn't push them in the direction to help the forum prosper. I wasn't pushy enough with ad stony Brook admins, and I wasn't a proper leader amongst the rest of e-board and the forum as a whole.

I should have put more work into helping the move, and spent less time playing League of Legends, but I didn't, and for that, I am very sorry. I can hope that by resigning, I can do my injustice right to the forum and all the people I hurt. To give some ~~introspec~~ insight on my experience, I was riding high when I was elected. I had big plans, and I thought I could be the forum's big shot savior in its time of need. I wanted to be remembered as the guy who saved the forum and helped it prosper. But I didn't put enough work and backbone into it and that's why I failed. I didn't have enough backbone to follow up on my convictions. Another foolish thought I had was that I could handle the responsibilities of the club, as well as the academic responsibilities I had as a senior. I was also wrong on that.

Future advice to future runners for e-board:

Make sure to thoroughly analyze whether or not you can actually handle school work and eboard stuff.

Take classes that will have light workload and fulfill your requirements. Make sure you have the necessary skills to accomplish what you set out to do in the term.

DO NOT PROCRASTINATE!!!

It sucks balls when you have an avalanche of work due and you have to handle the responsibilities of running a club.

In truth, that's the good part of me resigning:

I have more time to focus on my personal development and my academics. That's some more advice; make sure you are of sound mind going into the job of doing it. Also, don't be me and try to run several tabletop rpgs and play in other ones while doing other stuff. If you're gonna be a leader, actually budget your time. Trust your gut, but also seek advice from others and follow up on it. Use people's criticism of your actions to develop and grow. Take a siesta, but not too often. Be in constant communication with your fellow e-board, and ~~also~~ always ask them what you can be doing to make things better, and then act upon advice. Talk to the older Formites, cause they have wisdom, something that is lacking when you're going through an undergraduate college degree. Take some time to recollect your sanity every once in a while. It will help to have a little break every once in a while. Make sure to eat properly as much as possible. Also, don't be me! Disengage from many relationship problems your friends have. Don't let your friends' relationships get in the way of you'd like. If ~~the~~ you really feel that it's worth it to help them out, do it, but make sure to be impartial as possible the whole way, and let both of your friends know you're doing so. I tried my best to do that, and I'm still not sure if I did right by that. Also, be as stern as possible with rule breakers. Do Not Let Festus turn into a shitshow Festus. The Airing of Grievances can be a tough time, especially since people will bring up beef with you that you never knew you had with them. There are a couple of things you can do to remedy this and prevent the Airing from souring anyone's night: 1) get people to talk. Remind them that the best way to solve a problem they have is to talk it out. 2) Always ask people where you stand with them, and work on improving that standing. 3) Convince people to change the tradition of the Airing to be a friendly roast with jokes rather than outright coldly presented criticism. People take the news that you hate them better when you make a joke out of it. As an aside, I always disliked the Airing, because it either turns into a dogpile of one specific person the forum dislikes in general, or people use it to air personal problems that they've kept bottled up inside up to that point. That's impractical, and it always ends with hurt feelings. Not gonna lie, finding out certain people really disliked me due to the fact that I was doing a bad job as president hurt a lot hearing it during the Airing, and I would have preferred those people talk to me in person about their problems with me sooner, but again I digress. Talk to people, see what they think. I thought people were ok with me, but they weren't, I was not vigilant enough. Be as tough as you need to be. In times of crisis, you have to be able to scramble a few eggs and make a goddam omelette if you need to.

As a friend of mine would put it: "Don't show weakness, do not lack conviction."

Yaa As a leader, sometimes you have to bear your fangs, and tackle problems head on. Something I don't do enough even in my personal life. Again, don't be me in that regard. Also, make sure you know when aggression is important. Don't be willing to fight all the time, otherwise you'll end up aggroing the wrong people. Also, for future presidents, stop the bullcrap about hating USG. We don't need to aggress them as a club, and it helps to have them on our side. If you can, get people elected to USG and then you can infiltrate them and protect the Forum from the inside. Don't be afraid to collaborate with clubs outside of our sphere of influence, as it can broaden the Forum's horizons. Be a Roosevelt instead of a Hoover. Speak softly and carry your big stick. I think the ~~big~~ ~~lesso~~ big lessons I learned were these!

1) Own up to your mistakes, and recognize when you have erred. Once you can accept that, you can do your best to climb out of the shit hole you made for yourself. 2) Be aggressive when you need to, and recognize when it's necessary. 3) Be in constant communication with the members of your e board, so you can work with them to the best of your capacity. 4) Keep your emotions out of the job. Be a robot if you have to, but don't let your feelings get in the way of what must be done. 5) You must show conviction, determination, whole-heartedness in whatever you set out to do, no matter how big or small the task. Any thing you do is representative of the people you lead, so you must be sure your hand is steady, and you stand tall, ready to face the world.

I'm going to end my rambling here. I hope that Future forumites won't remember me as a completely shitty President, cause despite all I've did, I love this place. A majority of my friendships were formed within the forum. I love the community,

I love the fact that we have such a huge legacy and so many books, and I don't have to see any of the Forum be let go. I will continue to do my best to help the Forum any way possible, and if I have to be a basic grant to do so, so be it. My only hope is that the Forum will live long and prosper, and I can look back further in my life and be proud of what this organization has accomplished. Stay strong my friends.
