Historian Story:

Chicken Soup Crimes

The Forum has a history of committing petty crimes, or shenanigans to those who remember these events fondly. Back in the day there used to be some menacing pranks- things that would never fly in this day and age. Once upon a time, some Forumites snuck chicken stock cubes into the water facilities and dumped them in to curse the university with something so fowl (pun intended) that would bring tears to your eyes: the whole campus smelled like chicken soup. If you liked chicken soup, this would be good news, but for everyone else this was misery.

Also another time the Forum got chemical dye and turned the fountain water red. We should not be given access to any waterways whatsoever, but we were never restricted.
