Historian Story:

Is your handwriting bad?

Outside the forum and wanna remember to write something in Log later? Can't find Log? Too lazy to get up and write yourself? Well then, the #logbook-entries Discord channel is for you, dear Forumite.

Last year on 01 March, the club Discord enjoyed the creation of a #logbook-entries channel. And by enjoyed, I mean they went wild; it quickly became filled with regular chatting and reaction gifs that overwhelmed the channel and it had to be put into slow mode to avoid the spam. The channel became filled with Forum classics like out of context quotes, conversations about questionable topics, and

W

S
T

D

P
A
C
E.

Eventually, Forumites calmed down and the channel became more functional for its purposes.

BONUS STORY: The "50th" Anniversary!

Five years ago, the Forum celebrated our 50th Anniversary (or 50.5 as some insist). In preparation for our 55.5th Anniversary event, let's recall some events of the 50th. The Logbook was not out during the event, so no Forumites wrote things in there live. There were a couple entries made after the event, including the ever so classic "here for my shift." The event itself was a success (at least according to those who wrote in Log), filled with shenanigans, and mischief from children running around. Unfortunately Ken, who had planned most of the event, was unable to make it due to the flu. Other notable events from the night include lightsaber battles, a little girl obtaining the powers of Thanos and Ironman, a book being returned after 37 years, and lots of dancing.

(Please come to the 55th! Tickets linked above.)
